3 Senators Would Inquire In Need for State Agency

MADISON (AP)—The Legislature's Joint Finance Committee has recommended passage of a bill creating a Senate crime investigation unit.

The bill endorsed by a unanimous vote Tuesday would create a special committee of three senators to investigate the need to establish a state crime investigation agency. The attorney general would be a non-voting member of the committee. It would have full powers of investigation and could hire a staff and take secret testimony.

Syndicate Involved
Sen. Jerris Leonard, R-Milwaukee, author of the measure, told the Joint Finance group Tuesday it might be difficult to find three senators willing to take committee posts because of possible dangers involved.

Millions of New Yorkers Cheer Cooper

Tumultuous Ticker Tape Parade on Broadway for Flier

NEW YORK (AP)—Millions of New Yorkers cheered astronaut Gordon Cooper today along Broadway in a tumultuous ticker tape parade—the city's salute to national heroes.

The crowd along Lower Broadway alone was estimated unofficially at two million—with miles more of the city still to be traveled en route to a civic luncheon at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

The cheering sometimes seemed to verge on the point of hysteria as a maelstrom of tape, confetti, and torn paper swirled from skyscrapers in the city's tribute to the smiling Air Force major who last week orbited the earth 22 times.

Crowds jammed the sidewalks of the "Canyon of Heroes" and workers leaned from office windows, shouting their acclaim.

Open Car
A crowd swarmed around Cooper's open car at the very start of the parade from Bowling Green to City Hall.

Even before the 20-car motorcade reached Bowling Green, the official starting point, the crowds along the streets were in a turmoil. Police had difficulty clearing the way.

The slim spaceman sat in the rear of the car, smiling and waving as the police struggled with the throngs.

Dozens of persons broke through the police lines, shouting, "Hello, Coop," "Wonderful job, Coop," and "Go, go, Gordon."

"This is wonderful, exciting he was heard to remark. 'This is great stuff.'"

Reynolds Vetoes World Fair Plan

MADISON (AP)—Gov. John W. Reynolds vetoed a measure today that would have created a commission to direct Wisconsin's participation in the New York 1964-65 World Fair.

The commission would have been headed by Republican Lt. Gov. Jack Olson. Reynolds was included as a member of the commission.

The governor called the appointment of Olson as chairman "a technical impropriety."

"The chairmanship has not traditionally been given to a subordinate constitutional officer when a superior constitutional officer is represented on the same committee," the governor said.

When the veto message reached the floor of the Senate, where the commission bill originated, Sen. Robert Knowles, R-New Richmond, called it "childish."

66.7 Per Cent Approval Required but Only 47.8 Per Cent Backed Proposal

BY OVID A. MARTIN

WASHINGTON (AP)—Wheat growers have voted strongly against stricter controls on their crops, capping the biggest campaign ever waged in the American farmlands with a stinging defeat for the Kennedy administration and its farm policies.

The administration had thrown its prestige and strength behind its program in a battle against farm groups demanding less rather than more government in agriculture.

The extent of the defeat in Tuesday's referendum was measured by the fact that the administration proposal failed to muster a simple majority of the votes.

Approval by at least 66.7 per cent of those voting was required for adoption.

First Rejection
Complete returns gave 547,151 for the plan and 596,943 against. The vote in favor was 47.8 per cent of the total—far short of that required. This was the first time in 13 referenda that a wheat control program had been rejected.

Tuesday's referendum means an alternative program of low price supports for those who voluntarily cut production—but none the right to produce whatever they desire in 1964, for whatever the market will pay, rather than for higher prices and limited production.

Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman, who before the vote said defeat of the administration plan would be "chaotic," said flatly today the alternative provided by the referendum "will be in effect for the 1964 wheat crop."

"The point of view which prevailed in the referendum is entitled to a full and fair trial," he said.

And Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, said he would do all in his power to prevent any further wheat legislation this session.

A record outpouring of votes—particularly in the non-commercial wheat areas east of the Mississippi—overwhelmed the favorable votes cast in a small portion of the commercial wheat states of the Great Plains and Pacific Northwest.

Vote Less Than Expected
In only one region—the southeast—did the administration plan get a heavy majority. This region produces relatively little wheat but has become accustomed to rigid controls on its cotton, tobacco and peanut crops.

Over 900 Freed At Greensboro

Negro Students Placed in Custody Of College Chief

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—Racial unrest showed no sign of subsiding here today as more than 900 Negro students were released from jail to the custody of North Carolina Agricultural and Technical College.

But some progress was reported in racial disputes elsewhere in the state.

A court order issued at the suggestion of Gov. Terry Sanford, virtually cleared three temporary jails set up in Greensboro to house more than 1,200 persons, held on various charges resulting from racial demonstrations.

Trials Start Thursday
More than 1,500 persons have been arrested during the last week.

The college students were placed in custody of Dr. L. C. Dowdy, acting president of the state-supported college. They were ordered to appear in court for trials beginning Thursday.

Included among those released were 162 persons—including several juveniles—arrested during demonstrations Tuesday night. Approximately 300 other demonstrators, mostly Bennett College students, remained in jail.

Officers set up a three-hour shuttle relay starting about 12:30 a.m. to move the students from a former police hospital and the

Kennedy to Visit New York City

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy's trip to New York Thursday will be a mixture of presidential, private and political business.

Pierre Salinger, White House press secretary, said Kennedy is expected to land at Idlewild at 11:25 a.m. and will motor to Battery Park to dedicate a memorial in honor of servicemen who lost their lives in the Atlantic in World War II.

At 8:30 p.m., the President is scheduled to attend a political fund-raising banquet.

Salinger said it was also possible the President will have several private business appointments before flying back to Washington late Friday.

Assailed by County Boards Group, Milwaukee Interests

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Powerful lobbying forces Tuesday pounced on the Fox River Regional Planning Commission's proposal for a form of regional government and described it as a threat to the functions and rights of existing municipal governmental units.

The Wisconsin County Boards Association, the city of Milwaukee and the Milwaukee County Municipal League opposed at a state senate hearing the plan of the Valley planning group for the creation of multi-purpose districts to provide specific governmental services on a regional basis.

Legislation Explained
The legislation was explained and supported by Gordon Bubolz of Appleton, a member of the Valley commission, Eugene Franchetti, its planner, Walter C. Rasmussen, director of planning for the city of Appleton, and Mrs. Dorothy Stillings, a member of the Appleton city council and a member of the regional commission which now contains 12 municipalities.

Robert Heider, representing Milwaukee County suburbs, said the enabling legislation would pave the way for the "super-government" or the "metropolitan government" his organization is dedicated to resisting.

Normally the Milwaukee city lobby opposes everything that the Municipal League says or does, but in this case the city representative agreed with Heider. The city spokesman said the district governmental system could appropriate to itself some of the legiti-mate functions of city governments.

A. J. Thelen of the Wisconsin County Boards Association declared that the bill "is impossible to enact in its present form" because, among other reasons, it would delegate the power to issue bonds and other powers to a district board consisting of non-elective members. He said proposed bonding, condemnation and other powers would conflict with similar

Wisconsin Synod of Lutherans Against Parochial Schools Aid

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The Wisconsin Lutheran Synod's Council of presidents said in a statement Tuesday that church leaders "neither want nor seek the assistance of the state" in their educational program.

The 350,000 member synod operates 224 parochial grade schools and eight high schools in 13 states.

The council added in a statement that if the state gave assistance to parochial schools, it would "be shirking its duty if it were not to determine and supervise the manner in which its monies are used."

This, the council added, "invites the intrusion of the state into an area not assigned to it by God."

Special dyes were injected and samples taken from his arteries to see where and how fast his blood was going. Cooper Reads Prayer as He Circled Earth penter, an Episcopalian, talked of his faith last year before he was orbited into space.

"I have what I consider an abiding faith which sustains me at all times," Carpenter told a newsman. "I think it presumptuous to pray for yourself in time of peril."

No "Fire Engine" Type
The first American to orbit the earth, John H. Glenn Jr., expressed similar sentiments in February 1962 when he testified before a committee of Congress.

Glenn, a Presbyterian, was asked if he had prayed during his flight.

"I can't say that while in orbit you sit there and pray, or anything like that," he said. "My religion is not of the fire engine type — not one to be called on only in emergency and then put God back in the woodwork for a 24-hour period. I am trying to live as best I can. My peace has been made with my Maker for a number of years, so I had no particular worries on that line."

On that line, Russian cosmonaut Gherman Titov had a far different answer at a news conference in Seattle on May 6, 1962.

Titov's Comment
"Some people say there is a God out there," Titov said. "But in my travels around the earth all day long I looked around and didn't see him. I saw no God or angels. Up to our first orbital flight by Yuri Gagarin, no God helped build our rocket. The rocket was made by our people. I don't believe in God. I believe in man, his strength, his possibilities and his reason."

Titov also said some weeks earlier that, during his flight, he had thought of the wonders of the Communist system, not of God.

President Kennedy later recalled the two different attitudes of Titov and Glenn.
"I prefer Col. Glenn's answer," Kennedy said, "because I thought it was so solidly based, in his own life, in his activities, in his church, and I think it reflects a quality which we like to believe and I think we can believe is much a part of our heritage."

powers held by cities, counties and the state, and observed: "If we are going to have metropolitan government, it should be labeled as such."

The Valley commission delegation explained that there is a trend for district governmental organizations around the country and that their purpose is to set up services cooperatively in a more efficient and economical manner than they can be provided by separate towns, cities and villages.

UW Students Get Surgeon's View of Operation Via TV

MADISON — A whole classroom of University of Wisconsin students and doctors now can get the surgeon's eye view of an operation, thanks to a closed circuit television system in University Hospitals operating rooms at Madison.

The TV unit, a $30,000 gift of prominent UW alumnus and benefactor A. C. Nielsen Sr., was donated to the Medical School and University Hospitals to enrich the education of medical undergraduates, post graduates, and post-doctorates. Only a handful of hospitals in the country have such a set-up.

Nielsen visited University Hospitals on Friday to review operation of the TV system. According to Nielsen, his gift expresses a combined interest in television and great respect for the difficulties of surgery and its instruction. "I am very impressed by the fine anatomical details the set shows," Nielsen commented as he watched the telecast of UW surgeons removing a thyroid tumor.

Can Be Moved
The system, which has twice the resolution of an ordinary TV set, consists of a floor camera, a portable camera, and two overhead cameras set up in the operating rooms and connected by cables to four TV monitors elsewhere in the hospitals. A microphone worn by the surgeon enables him to give play by play explanations of the operating procedure.

The portable camera makes it possible for all other departments, including the basic sciences, to use the TV system for teaching in honor of the scholars.

In addition, Graberek pledged to work for a public accommodations law, under which no new business would be licensed unless it agreed not to discriminate against the races. He also would try to get charges dropped against those arrested during the prior demonstrations.

Japanese Fans, Decorations Give Xavier Parents 'Sayonara' Setting

The Same benign gentleman who oversaw the Xavier High School Senior Dance Friday evening held forth at the Parents Club spring party Saturday evening in Xavier Commons. The colorful mural, painted by Bruce Bisels, a junior at the school, did double duty at the party.

"Sayonara" was the party theme, with parents of Xavier students and their friends attending the festivities.

Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Theiss and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Fieweger were chairmen of the event.

In addition to the Japanese mural and script adorning the walls, party decor included spring flowers arranged in Japanese bowls and tiny 'yum-yum' trees.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Baer were oblivious to the stares of the Japanese gentlemen looking over their shoulders Saturday evening as they attended the Xavier Parents Club spring dance. The couple is shown at right, with Mrs. Baer adding to the Oriental flavor of the party with a Japanese fan.

A Ramp Led 'Sayonara' party-goers from the western world to the splendor of the East Saturday evening. Above, entering Xavier Commons for the annual party are Mr. and Mrs. John E. Van Groll and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Volpintesta. At right, sampling the snacks provided at the party, are Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Theiss and Mr. and Mrs. John Fieweger. (Post-Crescent Photos)

Recommends Spanking; Assumes Monster Role

BY JOY MILLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Dr. Peter G. Cranford is a spanker.

This, of course, makes him a monster in the eyes of all permissive psychologists and parents who believe a hand laid on an erring child in discipline hurts psyche as well as backside.

But Dr. Cranford, a tanned, easygoing, practicing general psychologist in Augusta, Ga., thinks you hurt a child more when you let him get away with murder.

Through clinical observation of emotionally disturbed young patients, he evolved what he calls the reinforcement method of discipline. He's so convinced it works, he has written a book about it: "Disciplining Your Child: the Practical Way."

How It Works

In New York in connection with the book's publication, he explains how it works in many phrases.

"Don't whip hell out of him, but whenever he makes a mistake just pop him. If he sticks a finger in the lamp socket 15 times a day, just pop him 15 times a day. Just to sting, not to hurt. But don't delay, that teaches a child to disobey."

"What you're doing is setting up a conditioned response. Better 15 pops than one big whaling at the end of the day when your exasperation reaches a boiling point. With explosion, you have resentment. That's why kids get sick in general, the bulk of functional illness is the result of a conflict situation."

Conflict Situations

This happens, he says, when the actions of a child who has always been tolerated no longer by parents or school or community. When the limit is put down, the child suffers a conflict he can't resolve, he develops neurosis, then illness. If you can't swat a child, what are the alternatives?

"You either let him go on doing as he pleases or you punish him emotionally."

"Being locked in a closet for hours means emotional trouble. Or suppose you reason with a child for 45 minutes along these lines: 'We've treated you well, your sister doesn't do this, we've had so much trouble with you, you're a bad boy? You may not have spanked the child, but you're laid the ground for emotional problems.'"

"The only time there's emotional danger from reasonable corporal punishment is when it's unfair."

Don't Remove Privileges

"As for taking away privileges, I don't believe in it. There's no connection with what he's being punished for. And it carries on and on, if it's something like withholding allowance or no after-school play for three weeks, and becomes an emotional thing. With a spank, as soon as the lick is given all should be forgotten until the next offense."

Dr. Cranford also believes in rewards—"small, immediate and many"—especially during the learning process. But not bribes, please.

"A child instinctively realizes his weakness," says Dr. Cranford, father of four boys, ages 2 1/2 to 15. "He feels more secure if someone is keeping him from making a mistake. When you're disciplining a child, you're doing something for him. I don't think there is any fundamental difference between discipline and love."

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence V. Ritchie exchanged marriage promises at 11 a.m. Saturday at St. Denis Catholic Church, Shiocton. The Rev. Gerard Van Nuland officiated. The bride is the former Miss Judith Anne Nichols, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale D. Nichols, Shiocton. Her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Ritchie, route 1, Shiocton. (London Photo)

Trust Your Partner On Defense

If you saw the president of your bank walking down the street on his hands you might think he had suddenly gone crazy. If you are of the material that good bridge partners are made of, your reaction could be different. You would say to yourself: "There must be a good reason for this, and it's up to me to work out that reason."

West opened the ace of spades and continued with the deuce. East won the second spade and returned the three of hearts. South won with the jack of hearts, led a trump to dummy's ace and returned the nine of diamonds from dummy. East stepped up with the king of diamonds and led the ten of spades. South followed suit with this third spade, and West discarded the deuce of clubs. East continued with another spade, but South could not be over-ruffed. Declarer drew trumps and ran the rest of the tricks to make the contract.

Wrong Reaction

West had the wrong reaction when East made his strange heart play at the second trick. Instead of thinking that East had gone crazy, West should have said to himself: "That's a weird play. Why is my partner leading a heart? He must have a good reason, and I must work it out so that I know what he has in mind."

West would need only about one second to work out the reason for the shift to hearts. Having seen that East was trying for a ruff, West would ruff the third round of spades to return a heart.

East would get his heart ruff, and South would go down.

Please don't write in to say that your partner really is crazy and that if you tried to find a reason for his strange plays you'd go crazy too. Good defense is impossible unless each defender trusts his partner.

PIN-WORMS A FAMILY AFFAIR

Fidging, nose-picking, a tormenting rectal itch are often telltale signs of Pin-Worms... only parasites that medical experts say infect 1 out of every 3 persons examined. Entire families may be victims and not know it. To get rid of Pin-Worms, they must be killed in the large intestine where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jayne's P-W tablets do... and here's how they do it:

First—a scientific coating carries the tablets into the bowels before they dissolve. Then—Jayne's modern, medically-approved ingredient goes right to work—kills Pin-Worms quickly and easily.

Don't take chances with dangerous, highly contagious Pin-Worms which infect entire families. Get genuine Jayne's P-W Vermifuge... small, easy-to-take tablets... special sizes for children and adults.

Today's Etiquette BY LOUISE DAVIS

USES OF MAILING STICKERS

Dear Louise: Do you approve of the use of printed mailing stickers under a signature in a hand-written letter?

Louise Davis Answers: I do approve, especially when it is a help to the person reading the letter. It often avoids an error in spelling when answering it and when addressing the envelope. There are many hand-written letters that are difficult or impossible to decipher. Naturally people who regularly correspond wouldn't need these stickers under a signature, even if it is signed with a nickname.

SUMMER WEDDING ATTIRE

Dear Louise: At a summer wedding in the afternoon, is it considered acceptable for the bridegroom, best man and ushers to wear white dinner jackets? If not, what formal attire would they wear?

Louise Davis Answers: The white dinner jacket or the tuxedo which is the same thing, is not correct for an afternoon (or morning) wedding. If the wedding is to be strictly formal, the men should wear cut-a-ways or strollers. A cool, dressy look for summer time at any time of day or evening could be white coats (not dinner jackets), dark trousers, white shirts and four-in-hand ties.

The Ailing House

Knotty Pine Stays Light

BY ROGER C. WHITMAN

One of our readers has taken the time and trouble to write us of her method for keeping knotty pine from turning dark: "Our porch has had knotty pine on for four years and is still nice and light. This storing of wall panels, regardless of material is wise. Mix one quart turpentine and one-half cup good quality white house paint. Brush on about three boards at a time, then wipe off with waste or old rags. I prepared our boards before using them. Easier to work on, flat approximate the rest of the house, over horses." Thanks very much.

Mrs. M. for sharing this with us! Q: We remodeled our kitchen, including putting panels on the walls instead of painting. When the panels expand, they seem to force out the crack-filling preparation, leaving conspicuous cracks here and there. Is any do-it-yourself correction possible? A: Original difficulty was in pine stalling the panels before acclimating in the house for several days. This storing of wall panels, regardless of material is wise. Mix one quart turpentine and one-half cup good quality white house paint. Brush on about three boards at a time, then wipe off with waste or old rags. I prepared our boards before using them. Easier to work on, flat approximate the rest of the house, over horses." Thanks very much.

Wednesday, May 22, 1963 Appleton Post-Crescent B3 of the joints now would be covered with batten, which can be painted to match. If a smooth surface is desired, I don't know of any way to short-cut removing panels, shaving one-sixteenth of an inch off butting edges to allow for expansion, and replacing. Q: Inside my house I am experiencing shrinkage of door panels which are near hot air outlets. In some places, a panel has shrunk away from the upright into which it fits by as much as three-sixteenths of an inch, making the paint job look like the devil. Have you any suggestions? A: Close any possible crack where moisture can penetrate, using nonshrinking spackling compound. Follow this with a coat of

SEAMS TO ME Use Gauge For Hems

Many sewing aids displayed in notions departments are not absolutely necessary, but they can certainly make life easier for the seamstress. Some even decrease the time spent in turning up a hem. Browse through one of these departments; you may find gadgets that can be extremely useful.

Q: I recently saw a metal hem gauge. Is this better for measuring? I've always used a regular ruler or tape measure when turning up a hem, but if you think the other is better I'll try it. — Mrs. P. E.

A: The metal hem gauge (Figure B) is much more accurate than ruler or tape measure, and much easier to use. You slide the pointer at the desired width. Then place the pointer at the raw edge of the fabric and make a chalk mark at the top of the gauge. Do this at intervals and fold on the chalk marks (Figure A).

Q: I have trouble with machine stitches. In some places they are long and in others they are short. The repair man said the machine

Readers' Reactions Show Need For More Than One Approach

Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Why do you persist in calling people "Toots," "Lamb-Chop," "Bub," "P e t u n i a," "Buster," "Honcy-Bun" and countless other equally undignified names? Surely you must be aware that some people who write to you are older than you are and therefore entitled to respect. How do you think a 70-year-old grandmother feels when you refer to her as "Toots?"

Recently my father-in-law wrote to you and he did not sign his name. I recognized his letter because I happened to know of his problem. I admit the situation he described sounded like that of a much younger man, but he is a gentleman 68 years of age. In your reply to him you called him "Buddy Boy."

Your advice is excellent but your sarcasm and smart-aleck approach to your correspondents is a bit much. — To The Point

Dear Point: Thank you for your letter. It is not the first letter I have received offering this criticism. The next letter deals with the same subject. I hope you will read it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your column is like a breath of fresh air! I especially enjoy your down-to-earth, unpretentious, old-shoe attitude toward all who write. When you pop back with, "Look, Buttercup," or "Listen, Bub," my husband gets such a bang out of it he can't stop laughing. "Buster" and "Doll" set him off, too, but nothing does it like "Buddy Boy!"

Reading your column every day, is almost the same as having a personal chat with you. Your wisdom and wit are a priceless combination. Without being unkind you scale people down to size with just the right phrase. And who of us doesn't need it now and then?

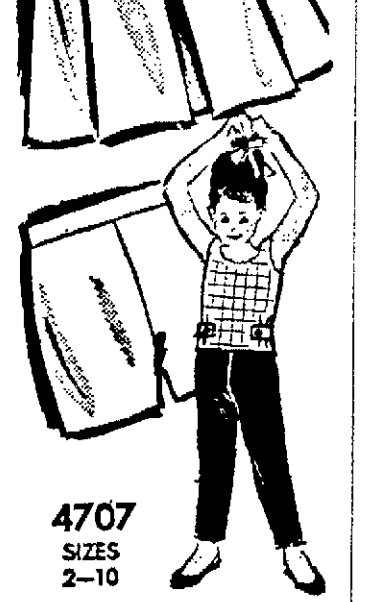

Don't ever lose that refreshing straight-from-the-shoulder humor which your readers dearly love. — N. C. Booster

Dear Booster: Thanks Doll. And please give my regards to "Buddy Boy."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a retired insurance man who has a good wife, a nice family and I'm strictly a mind-of-my-own-business type.

Three weeks ago I received a

Fool-the-Eye Tricks

Color and pattern should do and curtain fabric makes extra windows seem to disappear. Floor between beds would look narrower if the bedspreads and windows would step forward. They should fool the eye, as carpet contrasted colors, Mrs. B. they do in this bedroom sketched to answer Mrs. F. B.'s questions. One color spread wall-to-wall on the beds and the floor makes the narrow room seem wider. More of the same color for wallpaper background widens it more. Matching pattern for wallpaper needs, but should not be many-colored. Very pale blue all over the room and deeper blues in the pattern will keep the room bright but not too bright, as it might be with white and sunny color. Note suggestions for a chest between beds to add storage (make it pale blue), and for airy see-through headboards.

Mrs. J. G.: "We are re-doing our living room in Italian Provincial style. Walls and draperies are white, one living room chair is green and blue brocade, another living room chair and the dining chairs are in gold, lamps are white and gold, and tables are walnut, some with marble. I would like light green to match the green in the brocade chair for our new sofa, and deep bright blue for new carpeting. My husband would like the sofa in bright blue to match the blue in the chair, and pale blue carpet. May we have your opinion?"

Because there's more gold than any other color on the furniture — and it's the only furniture color in the dining room — gold should be considered first in choosing another color that carpet will provide so much of. You may be able to find a blue for carpet that flatters the gold, but since blue is the complement of gold, the combination is strong and many blues would look harsh in the dining room. Possibilities of finding exactly the right green for the gold are much better because the two are so closely related.

ed. The green should not be as light as the chair cover green. The sofa, then, could be in carefully chosen blue.

Mrs. R. L. J.: "Now that our children are near teen-age, we'd like to convert a bedroom of our one-story house to a family room. It has a fireplace and an outside entrance, but unless we install a refrigerator for soft drinks and snack food, there will be too much traffic through the rest of the house to the kitchen. How can I make a refrigerator look right in the room, preferably without built-ins?

Ask your dealer to show you refrigerators that are designed for offices. Many are furniture-styled, and come in light, medium and dark wood tones.

Most Offices Like War Zone Aid Stations

Boyle Says They're Marked by Swivel Chair Warriors

BY HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Compared to the sweatshops of the past, the modern business office would seem a healthy place to earn a dollar.

It is comfortable, air-conditioned and so well lighted one can work out a crossword puzzle on the job surreptitiously without danger of eye strain.

But for some reason most offices resembled battlefield aid stations. They are full of the walking wounded and incipient stretcher cases.

Naturally, many of the illnesses of the white collar worker are imaginary. He invents them to help pass the time. If you have ever labored in a paper clip salt mine, here are a few swivel chair hypochondriacs you may find familiar:

"Fridayitis" — This guy draws his pay on Thursday so he can have a longer weekend to spend his money.

Very Popular
"Mondayitis" — Very popular with suburbanites this time of year. Also called "The Green Thumb Disease." Victims complain of dizziness and backstrain. Cause: Too much Saturday and Sunday gardening.

"Fridayitis-Mondayitis" — This fellow is mad at the corporation and phones in sick two days a week so he can look for a better job on company time.

"Two Buck Emacius" — The office gambler looks like he is suffering from a wasting disease. Actually he is merely suffering from starvation, because he loses all his money at the racetrack.

"Florence Nightingale Syndrome" — The boss' secretary is a mother hen who clucks constantly over the illness of others.

"Cleanliness Complex" — He has a phobia that everyone else in the place is trying to push their germs off on him. If you sneeze within 75 feet of him, he rushes to the company medical office, has his throat sprayed, and lies down for an hour.

"Old Grumpy Himself" — Whenever the boss falls ill, the nature of his malady is regarded as top secret. But whatever it is, the only known cure is a week of golfing in Florida.

The trouble with office hypochondriacs is that when anyone comes down with a disease a doctor can actually diagnose, he crawls painfully to work, even though he feels at death's door, for fear everyone else will feel he is malingering.

In 1939, Germany and Italy signed a 10-year military pact.

In 1946, the man who ordered the destruction of the Czech village of Lidice during World War II, Karl Frank, was hanged.

Ten years ago: President Eisenhower signed the offshore oil bill giving the states title to offshore lands within their historic boundaries.

Five years ago: Ten persons were killed and three hurt when eight Nike missiles exploded at the Army's launching base at Middletown, N.J.

How Much Money Do You Need? — Who's Asking?

BY MARY FEELEY
Consultant in Money Management

"How much money is financial independence?" asks ERP, in East St. Louis, Ill.

In a word, ERP, the answer is: Enough.

Enough for what? Enough to support a way of life that keeps your family in good health, that allows for credit but not debt. I was so glad to see a letter and that provides a means of education in your column recently from the way. By doing without a lot of ng your children that permits some satisfaction in simply living. Ask any 10 people to add all that up into money — and you'll get 10 different figures. For instance, a young wife in Dayton, Ohio, feels she and her husband have it made on $75 a week, fourths ours, and still go out to eat and see a movie once a week. I worked a year after marriage and we now have a baby on the way. By doing without a lot of woman whose husband's pay was under the $8,000 group, and yet they had a home, a new car paid in full, and many other enjoyments and assets. I'd like to shake her hand, for there aren't very many of us around nowa-days, or if there are they're hidden.

Yes, our furniture is paid in full as well as the washer, dryer and my husband's gun collection. It was buying one piece at a time when we had the cash that did it. My husband's company pays hospitalization and life insurance, and we even have enough left over to put into our savings account for vacations, our children's college fund and the most important — old age. For my husband and me, peace of mind and less worrying is our goal. Neither of our parents helped us out, either. That's what gives us complete satisfaction and a little pride in ourselves.

"Anonymous"

So there you have one answer. Financial independence can be had on $75 a week.

Another reader, in Rochester, N.Y., writes:

"Our home has been paid off for years, we have some money in the bank and some good stocks. I like to think we are well off!"

This wife is encouraging her husband to retire on $400 a month, which she feels will permit them to live comfortably, be independent financially.

Managing your money isn't the only route to success. You have to manage your aims and desires as well. The pattern for living to assist and always keep the on set for yourself must have books — earns about half what some relation to your present and my engineer brothers do with far potential income. Otherwise the shorter working hours. No her question "How much money is financial independence?" has no leaving her estate equally to her descendants which may be about $1,400 to each of her four children and five grandchildren.

Dear Miss Feeley:

Granted adult children living with parents should pay board and room. But what about children living with children? Basically, I banish the thought that I could ever accept one cent board payment from my own mother who raised me and sacrificed to see me through college. However, now mother is widowed and living with me, and we notice bills have just about doubled (heat, light and water bills she leaves the hot water running for hours), to say nothing of the food bill, the cost of chauffeuring her to the doctor and visits to her friends, which take so much of our very scarce time that we have almost lost contact with our own friends.

My husband, in his seven-day-a-week job at his own service. As long as your mother is in care of this newspaper.)

St. Norbert ROTC Lists Top Cadets

St. Norbert College ROTC has announced winners of the annual awards for accomplishments in military science.

Cadet Col. Lawrence Schoenberger, Oshkosh, was awarded the Rev. Vincent J. DeLeers gold bar for outstanding leadership.

Would it be right for her to pay her basic expense to us of about $50 to $60 a month?

Mrs. A.S., Gervais, Ore.

Dear Mrs. S.:

Such situations as yours can certainly get you all tangled up. However, I think you should consider your husband in this matter. The "expenses" of taking a member of your family into your home always involve more than money. The emotional problems can only be balanced by love and a sense of duty. But the financial ones can be arranged more easily. As long as your mother is in care of this newspaper.)

Attempt to Override Sales Tax Veto Fails

Republicans Vote Against Bid by GOP

MADISON (AP)—The State Senate failed Tuesday to override Democratic Governor John W. Reynolds' veto of the Republican-sponsored general sales tax bill.

Four Republicans whose independent stands have earned them the title of "mavericks" teamed with 11 Democrats to deny Republicans the two-thirds majority needed to pass a bill over a veto. The final vote was 18 to 15.

The mavericks were Sens. Allen Busby of Milwaukee, Chester Dempsey of Hartland, Earl Levenich of Sparta, and Reuben LaFave of Oconto.

In his brief veto message, Reynolds had called the sales tax a burden on the poor, said that Republicans were friends of business, and that they would have to lick him in an election to get the sales tax.

Insulted Senate

Sen. Robert Knowles of New Richmond, majority floorleader, said the message "insulted" the entire Senate. He and others urged Democrats to join in an attempt to reach a compromise tax program.

"There really isn't anybody who believes that the Republican majority in the Legislature can reach agreement with this governor," Sen. James Leonard, R-Milwaukee, told Democrats. "You're going to have to stiffen your backs and sit down and help us settle it here."

But Sen. Richard Zaborski of Milwaukee, Democratic floorleader, brushed this aside. The Republican legislature should stop "shunning its responsibility" and act on the governor's budget or present its own, he said.

"It's just as childish in refusing to pass a budget as to refuse passage of a tax bill," Zaborski said.

AP Official Remarks on Reporter's Job

Keith Fuller Says Writer's Lot Gets Harder Each Year

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The job of the reporter grows more difficult and complex each year both in this country and abroad, Keith Fuller, general executive of The Associated Press, said Tuesday night.

Speaking to the Milwaukee professional chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, a journalism society, Fuller said, "It is like a grim game where the diverse factions try to keep the objective reporter from finding the thing he is looking for: unadulterated truth."

At times the barriers are only slightly less stringent in domestic areas than in foreign fields where not-too-subtle threats of expulsion dog the trail of the newsman, Fuller said.

Little Rock Events

Fuller said events in Little Rock, Oxford, Miss., and Birmingham are accelerated steps in the social revolution that is in progress in the United States. He continued:

"I think we are witnessing what historians will call one of the most significant happenings of our century. Don't be deluded into thinking this revolution is confined to the South. Already it is manifesting itself wherever the Negro minority lives, and when the obvious legal state barriers are down it will continue to burn into the less obvious places where discrimination is practiced without fanfare—in the community."

Fuller is in charge of The Associated Press Newsfeature Department and also heads the AP Personnel Department in New York.

Faces Veto

Group Unable to Agree On Remapping Bill

MADISON (AP)—The Senate Governmental and Veterans Affairs Committee was unable to agree Tuesday on a Republican legislative redistricting bill and reported it out of committee without recommendation.

In the absence of the chairman, Sen. Leo O'Brien, R-Green Bay, the committee split 2-2 on motions to recommend killing and passage then voted 4-0 to send the bill out without recommendation.

The action came after a public hearing in which three persons gave qualified support to the measure and eight opposed it.

Facing Veto

Should the bill pass in its present form, it would be vetoed by Gov. John W. Reynolds and if nothing further is done Reynolds is expected to seek court action. As attorney general, Reynolds carried the problem to the Supreme Court and was told to reinstate his action if the 1963 Legislature fails to act by June 1.

Senate districts are little affected by the GOP bill. The major assembly change is to give Waushara County two additional assemblymen while keeping Milwaukee County's representation at 24. Reynolds and numerous others insist that Milwaukee's population also requires two additional seats.

Assemblyman Edgar Lien, R-Bloomer, said he favored the bill but suggested an amendment that would keep Chippewa and Eau Claire counties in the same Senate district.

GOP Accuses Reynolds of Playing Politics

Charge Made as Governor Releases School Aid Payment

MADISON (AP)—Assembly Republicans accused Gov. John W. Reynolds Tuesday of playing politics with school aids and Democrats responded with the contention that the GOP is jeopardizing Wisconsin schools by refusing to act on a budget.

Republicans were nettled by Reynolds' statement Friday that he had released the regular $35 million school aids payment even though the two parties are deadlocked over tax policy. Reynolds implied his decision was between holding the money on hand and giving the schools the aids promised.

"There was no reason for that statement," Glen Pommerening, R-Wausau, told the Assembly. "The money is there and he had no discretion under the law."

Law Provisions

Pommerening said the statutory provisions for cutting expenditures on a pro-rated basis won't go into effect until "late 1964 or early 1965" if the present stalemate continues.

Democratic floorleader Robert Huber of West Allis contended that Reynolds was "taking a mighty big chance" in releasing the aids. "We don't know what the GOP is going to do," Huber said.

William Ward, D - New Richmond, then moved to withdraw from committee a bill that would adjust the school aid formula and increase aids by some $28 million in the next biennium.

Republicans objected to withdrawing the measure.

The Assembly then voted 50-43 against pulling the bill out of committee.

Fuller said events in Little Rock, Oxford, Miss., and Birmingham are accelerated steps in the social revolution that is in progress in the United States. He continued:

"I think we are witnessing what historians will call one of the most significant happenings of our century. Don't be deluded into thinking this revolution is confined to the South. Already it is manifesting itself wherever the Negro minority lives, and when the obvious legal state barriers are down it will continue to burn into the less obvious places where discrimination is practiced without fanfare—in the community."

Montana Pupils Protest Delay in College Building

BILLINGS, Mont. (AP)—Eastern Montana College students took up carpentry Tuesday night to protest what they called delay in construction of a dormitory, library and classrooms at the school.

Members of the student legislature worked through the night to erect a one-room schoolhouse, facing the school's main administration building. The painted it red, with a sign saying: "We want the best education we can get. Crowded library and living off campus deter us from this goal."

In Plugging for State

Lawmakers to Put Politics Aside

WASHINGTON (AP)—Wisconsin's members of Congress, having agreed to put political considerations aside in plugging for the state. As a starter they have Wisconsin.

Norman F. Ramsey of Harvard on the line to back a proposal to build a big and expensive atom smasher in the state.

The 12 members of the Wisconsin delegation met Tuesday in the first of what is expected to be a series of meetings to prepare a solid front in seeking solutions to the state's problems. Democratic Sen. Gaylord Nelson and Republican Rep. Melvin Laird were named co-chairmen of a committee to develop an agenda for future meetings.

The group agreed to send letters to President Kennedy, the Atomic Energy Commission, and the Budget Bureau to urge backing for the Ramsey committee, by the AEC's general advisory Committee to study the high energy atomic field. The Ramsey committee recommended Monday that a high intensity accelerator, estimated to cost $150 million, be constructed near Madison.

The delegation also instructed Nelson and Laird to arrange meetings with Rev. M. Whitton, head of the Public Roads Administration, concerning allocation of additional mileage to Wisconsin for the interstate highway system. Laird said there are about 80 miles of such roadway that have not been allocated.

TWA Hikes Fares For Italian Flights

WASHINGTON (AP)—On Thursday, Trans World Airlines will put in effect a 5 per cent increase in economy round trip fares between the United States and Italy.

The higher fares had been ordered by the International Air Transport Association despite protests here. Similar increases already have been made in fares to France, Germany and Portugal.

Byrnes Helps Escort Cooper to Rostrum

WASHINGTON — Rep. John W. Byrnes, R-Green Bay, by appointment of Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass., was one of eight House members today to escort Maj. L. Gordon Cooper, Jr., through the aisles of the House to the rostrum, where he addressed a joint meeting of congress.

Although the Green Bay congressman had little time to do more than shake Cooper's hand and congratulate him on his space flight, Byrnes said the major impression he had was a "terrific guy."

African Heads Of State Plan Summit Talks

30 of 33 Nations Will Be Represented at Historic Conference

BY MILT FREUDENHEIM
Chicago Daily News Service
UNITED NATIONS — The biggest and possibly most important meeting of African presidents, kings and premiers in history opens today in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia.

Foreign ministers of 30 of the 33 independent countries of the continent have been there hammering out the agenda for the four-day conference this week.

The missing countries are segregationist South Africa, not invited; Togo, invitation expected but held up to show dismay at the assassination of Togo President Sylvanus Olympio, and Morocco, whose King Hassan II refused to sit with the head of Mauritania, a country to which Morocco lays claim.

President Kennedy is expected to send a special greeting to the conference expressing American support for the goals of African unity and co-operation.

Greeting from Space

Astronaut Maj. L. Gordon Cooper already has won points for Washington in Africa by transmitting a good-will greeting as his space capsule passed over Addis.

The glamor of the African summit meeting will be provided by the expected presence of such key leaders as United Arab Republic President Gamal Abdel Nasser, Ghana President Kwame Nkrumah, Congo Premier Cyrille Adoula, Guinea President Sekou Toure.

The host is Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie, the bearded, 73-year-old patriarch of one of the world's oldest independent nations.

Goals of Parley

He has stated the parley's goals as:

— Speeding independence for all Africa.

— Cooperation leading toward unity of rival African political groupings.

Ghana President Nkrumah, long an apostle of African unity, has proposed a new Union of African States with a two-house political organization, joint defense set-up, unified diplomatic corps, African common market and single currency.

Nkrumah, in messages to his fellow heads of state, insists these measures can and should be put into effect "without necessarily

MAN LEARNS ABOUT WOMEN IN HIS COIN-OPERATED LAUNDRY

DEAR CY:

My company is frustrating me to the point of desperation. We process and package foods and sell them to what our executives call "the mass market." The "mass market" they visualize is composed of people like themselves and their friends who drive expensive cars and, take six weeks off a year to stay at high priced resorts. Our advertising is beamed at the high livers and our products are sold to Mr. and Mrs. Ordinary (like me and my wife). When I complain to the ad manager about this, he shrugs his shoulders and says, "That's what the brass wants." Does anyone in advertising know how to sell a product to the people who buy it?

much schooling enough to go into the mail order business?

MEATY

DEAR MEATY:

Don't tell me, with a skilled job, you are over the hill at 49. Think young . . . or your age at least. Work at being more efficient and hold that job. (Your employer may even be dreading the day you might leave him.) Anyway, stay as close to your experience as possible. Mail order is a totally different field. Even if you had a college education, you might be wise not placing yourself on the mail order chopping block.

A. J.

DEAR A. J.:

The advertising business moves at such a fast-clip, opinions are often stamped over customer attitudes. John K. Barton, after 30 years as creative director of a New York advertising agency, chased a coin-operated laundry in Amarillo, Texas. What he learned about the mass market (and women) during the course of a year as coin-opper is piercing contemplation in ad circles. "Advertising Age," the aggressive, respected trade publication ran an article expressly written for its feature section by this advertising alumnus. Barton stated, " . . . I question whether today's bright and sophisticated people who create or influence advertising have any real conception of the thought pulses of the vast majority of the people to whom they appeal. Like the middle-middle and lower-middle class housewife, they are on their side, but don't really want to know 'how the other half lives.' " Despite this, a lot of shrewd advertising agencies manage to move a lot of product. Whether it is the message or the massive weight of advertising is the perennially unanswered question.

DEAR CY:

We have a cousin in the publishing business who only takes time to cuss us out. He won't help my brother and me get into publishing, but we have our eyes on a life like the one Bennett Cerf leads. At present we are in high school. Where can we get information on this field as a career?

MARIO and LASKER

DEAR MARIO AND LASKER:

Glad you turned from your cussed cousin to a course of action. Write R. R. Bowker Company, 62 West 45th Street, New York City. Ask for the booklet (25 cents), "So You Want to Get Into Book Publishing."

CY

Let enthusiasm spell success for you — with the help-giving ideas contained in the booklet, "The Wonderful Power of Enthusiasm." A copy's yours for 20 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope sent to Cy Barrett, in care of this newspaper.

New bids for construction of the

UW Director To Speak at Awards Day

Verne Imhoff Will Talk at Menasha High

MENASHA — Verne Imhoff, director of the University of Wisconsin, Fox Valley Center, will speak at the Menasha High School Awards Day program at 10 a.m. Thursday in the high school auditorium. He will be introduced by Cassie Bachhuber, president of the Student Senate.

Scholarships will be announced by Miss Bernice Miller.

The alumni book and key ceremony will be conducted by Mark Wiltarding and Pat Kenney, junior class president.

Concluding the program, the student body will sing the Menasha High School song, directed by Mrs. Alberta Doverspike.

3,750 seat facility are expected to be considerably less than those first received because of a change in specifications.

3,750 Seats

The seating capacity is not expected to be changed.

Aldermen agreed the stadium, even if built this year, would not be ready for use until 1964 because of the turl.

No estimate of the cost of the stadium under new specifications was made. However, the feeling among city officials appeared to be that the cost will be close to the original estimate by architects and engineers at $216,000.

At least $40,000 of this has already been pledged by the Banta Foundation, which also donated the land site.

Bond Issue

The city has approved a $150,000 bond issue for the project.

The figure of $216,000, although high by some estimates, is low compared with a figure of $300,000 estimated at one time. Seating capacity at that time, February of 1962, was at 5,000, however.

Two meetings were held by city

Old-Fashioned Police 'Stars' To be Retired

The Wild West type badges Appleton policemen have been wearing for years are going to be semi-retired on recommendation of Police Chief Earl O. Wolff and the common council's public safety committee.

The committee Tuesday night authorized purchase of 70 new badges for department members at a cost of $18.

Wolff said the big star-type badges, which were inaugurated by one of Appleton's early police chiefs, still would be worn on some uniforms.

The new badges will be smaller and will be displayed prominently.

The big badges have been taking a toll of uniforms over the years. Policemen say they are so big and heavy they have been tearing shirts.

William Kraemer, Retired Neenah Florist, Dies

NEENAH — William G. Kraemer, 66, Neff Court, retired Neenah florist, died this morning after a short illness. He had operated the Kraemer Greenhouse from 1932 until his retirement in July of 1962. He was born Jan. 22, 1897 in Appleton and worked at the Appleton Wire Works before opening the greenhouse.

He was a veteran of World War I and a member of Hawley-Dieckhoff American Legion post, a member of the Fox River Valley Florist Association and an honorary member of the Wisconsin-Upper Michigan Florist Association. Survivors are the widow, a daughter, a brother, two sisters and four grandchildren.

Funeral services will be at 2 p.m. Saturday at Trinity Lutheran Church, 11 a.m. Saturday and at interest and support. Contemporary plans for a future building.

4 Members Named to YWCA Steering Group

NEENAH — Four new appointments to the YWCA steering committee, which will hold the first of several meetings Friday noon at the Valley Inn, were announced today by Mrs. Win Pervier, YWCA executive director.

New members of the committee are Howard Angermeyer, Lawrence Blume, Kenneth Davis and Harold Graverson.

The steering committee has been organized to assist the board of directors in evaluating a recently completed professional developmental study done for the

Y. Members of the committee, the board, staff and other interested persons heard the May 10 report of Maurice Gogle, Beaver Associates, Inc., Chicago. Since that time men on the committee have received copies of space requirements for a proposed new Y building, as prepared by the architect and other background materials about the Y.

For more than a year Y members have studied community needs, potential programs, building requirements and community interest and support. Contemporary plans for a future building.

ing have been outlined and the developmental study was done to determine whether a fund raising campaign could be undertaken.

Capital Campaign

The men's steering committee will give their recommendations regarding a capital campaign and a future building to the Y board, which will make the final decision. Then, if the decision is in the affirmative, the board will request permission from the Community Chest to conduct a fund-raising campaign.

The estimate was made by Fire Chief Jerome Gumbinger, who figured the loss to the two-story brick building at close to $50,000 and to the contents at $125,000. Gumbinger said an electric short apparently started the blaze.

Fireman Thomas Czarnecki was hospitalized for treatment of smoke inhalation.

Boat Inspection

NEENAH — The Coast Guard auxiliary will conduct a courtesy inspection of boats from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday at Shattuck Park, Neenah, and Smith Park, Menasha.

Kaukauna Is Told Legion Owns Land

League of Municipalities Counsel Says Original Contract Is Legal

KAUKAUNA — The common council Tuesday night was told by legal counsel for the League of Municipalities, the American Legion is legal owner of property behind the high school on Oak Street.

The city deeded the property to the Legion for $1 in 1938 and at that time agreed to buy back property, when needed for school purposes, for $1 plus cost of maintenance and upkeep. Last year the council attempted to purchase the property, but felt the American Legion was asking an exorbitant sum above the $1 original purchase price.

The city attorney at that time ruled the initial contract was illegal and the city was not obligated to pay more than $1 for the property. A new city attorney, elected since the first ruling, felt the original agreement would stand up in court and suggested an exchange of property as a possible solution.

His opinion received support of the league counsel referring the matter to the planning commission before action is taken. Council members took the advice of the league and referred the matter to the finance committee and planning commission for further study.

The city is attempting to procure the area of the old Legion building as parking area for the school.

Ald. Gilbert Anderson (2nd) questioned Mayor Joseph Bayorgeon as to whether the council should inform residents living near the high school of council intentions to purchase their property at a future date.

Bayorgeon recommended the finance committee work with the school board in an effort to ascertain when the property would be purchased, thus giving the council more sound footing when approaching affected property owners. He advised a close study of finances before making definite moves.

Bayorgeon recommended the council advertise a policy, inaugurated last year, informing the public that persons hired for permanent work with the city would only be accepted after the jobs were advertised. No applications for permanent work are filed with the clerk, noted Bayorgeon, but temporary work applications are acceptable. The mayor asked the council to establish a rule defining "temporary work."

Approval was given to the naming of Ald. George Sumon (3rd) to the planning commission. A request from the Eagle Aerie to close off Oak Street for a street dance on Aug. 3 was referred to the health and recreation committee and police chief for study. Ald. Clarence O'Connor (2nd) asked that action on a proposed road between Main Avenue and Island Street, south of the high school, be delayed until a complete survey was given on future traffic plans should such a road be installed. His recommendation received full support of the mayor who indicated the road would not solve anything unless proper planning was completed in advance.

Hire Engineer
Council members voted to hire Donald Mayor, engineer, to survey school property, establish boundary lines and determine land ownership in the area of the proposed road. Existing titles to land will be investigated by the city attorney.

Properties near the high school will not be considered for purchase pending final tabulation of money left after the completion of the high school addition. A $2,000,000 bond issue for financing the school was floated with surplus monies earmarked for purchase of future school property.

The school board has been anxious for the city to secure additional land, but council members feel no action should be taken until the availability of funds is determined. The board of education will be asked to refrain from blacktopping a portion of their parking lot until a survey of the surrounding area is completed. This is to prevent tearing up blacktop should a road be built in the future.

The city engineer was instructed to secure bids on a brush chipper and the board of public works was authorized to investigate property on County Trunk Z damaged through improvement of the road through a joint county-city improvement program. Some fill may be necessary to return private property to normal conditions, indicated William Rogers, alderman 5th.

Residents Complain Lights On Parking Ramp 'Too Bright'

Some Appleton residents are complaining to city officials that the West Ramp parking structure is overlighted at night.

However, members of the common council's public safety committee indicated Tuesday night they disagreed.

Aldermen admitted they have been questioned by some constituents on the lighting.

The committee said it's position is that adequate lighting is needed for several reasons, including the protection of women who return to the ramp to pick up their cars.

"If we didn't have adequate lighting in there and someone was accosted, then the aldermen would

Appleton Gets $48,598 State Tax 'Windfall'

City Clerk Elden Broehm saw nothing but dollar signs today.

There was a good reason.

The City of Appleton received notification from State Tax Commissioner John A. Gronouski that it is due to receive a $48,598 windfall in income tax rebates.

Broehm was notified that the $48,598 would be included in the May allocation of $827,172 of shared income taxes to be received by Appleton.

The windfall came about when Gronouski said that corrected statement of individual income tax returns showed the rebate paid the city in 1962 was $48,598 less than it should have been.

Today's news from the tax commissioner was in contrast to that received by the City of Appleton last year when notification came that its rebate was $100,000 less than originally estimated. As a result, the common council had to do quite a bit of budget request reshuffling last fall.

Forecast Says Crop Damage, More Cold

Appleton Smashes
Old Record Low
By Four Degrees

Appleton's temperatures smashed the old low record in the city for May 22, and the weatherman is predicting still more cold.

The old record, 37, was recorded in 1958. This morning's low was 33.

The U. S. Weather Bureau, Austin Straubel Field, Green Bay, said this morning that no overnight crop damage had been reported, but that some damage, especially to the Door County cherry crop, was expected by Thursday morning.

Thursday's forecast calls for an overnight low of 30, with a warming trend setting in during the day and a high of 65. The bureau predicted showers today with a possibility of snow flurries.

The Outagamie County Extension Office said this morning that DHA agents touring some farms reported no frost damage was found.

Man Arrested in Green Bay Has $8,500

Found Unconscious in Bus Station,
Charged With Being Drunk, Disorderly

Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — An Omaha man arrested Tuesday afternoon on charges of being drunk and creating a disturbance at the Union Bus Station on N. Adams Street was carrying more than $8,500 in cash at the time of his arrest, police said today.

The man, identified as Andrew Saba, Omaha, was being held in the county jail today awaiting the arrival of his brother Joseph from Madison.

Police were sent to the bus station about 4:30 Tuesday afternoon after the station manager reported a man creating a disturbance.

Officers John Jaegers and Merlin Gleffe answered the call. When they arrived, they found the man, later identified as Saba, lying on the floor with a gash in his head, received when he fell against the counter at the station. Saba was taken to St. Vincent Hospital by ambulance, treated for the laceration, then transferred to the Brown County Jail where he was booked at 5:30 p.m. on drunk and disorderly charges.

Find Brief Case

Officers searching his belongings came across a small, brown brief case which, when opened, was found to be filled with bills. A final count showed Saba had voked in 1955 for failure to pay $8,575.20 in his possession, mostly in $20 bills.

When police contacted Saba's brother at Madison, they learned Saba had taken the brief case, originally containing between $10,000 and $11,000 from the trunk of his brother's car.

The brother said Saba had been in Madison about May 3 for a visit, but disappeared while he and his wife were away. The money was found missing at the same time. The brother said he kept the money in his car because he did not trust banks.

The disappearance of the money was not reported to police, the brother said, because it was a family matter.

The cash is being held by police pending proper establishment of its ownership. Dane County and Madison officials also are checking into the matter.

The Internal Revenue Service also has checked the case, it was learned.

Lawrence Says:
Supreme Court
Fails to Clear
Law on Negroes

Demonstrations in South Illegal, Legal In Similar Cases

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
WASHINGTON — Who knows what the "law of the land" is with respect to Negro demonstrations and resultant disorders in Birmingham, Ala., and other cities throughout the country?

Are state or city police forbidden to arrest anyone for inciting disorder as long as the purpose or objective is to demonstrate for a lawful cause? These questions are touched upon in one way or another in a series of decisions of the supreme court of the United States which were handed down this week. But the opinions rendered do not clarify the issue. In most of the decisions, technicalities are intermingled with constitutional principle, and it is difficult to know where one begins and the other ends.

Thus, the supreme court decided that in one city, which has an ordinance forbidding integration, it was lawful for sit-in demonstrators to demand service alongside of whites in restaurants. The decision said, in effect, that the proprietor was ordered by state law and didn't segregate lunch counters of his own free will.

In another city, where there was no state or city law requiring segregation, the supreme court held that statements made from time to time by public officials amounted to the same thing as a law. Hence, demonstrators were within their rights in pursuing their objectives and the restaurant owner was being "coerced" by city officials and was not acting of his own accord in maintaining segregated lunch counters.

Decisions Not Unanimous
These confusing interpretations were by no means unanimous. Justice Harlan, one of the most learned of the members of the court, took issue with the other justices on the extent to which private rights may be invaded. Most significant is the court's view that when a demonstration leads to violence and disorder, the demonstrators are not held to be at fault. Chief Justice Warren said, with regard to one of the cases, that incitement to disorder may occur, but that those whose acts gave rise to the riots or disorders could not be punished. He said:

"But it is sufficient to say again that a generally worded statute, when construed to punish conduct which cannot be constitutionally punished, is unconstitutionally vague."

"And the possibility of disorder by others cannot justify exclusion of persons from a place if they otherwise have a constitutional right — founded upon the equal protection clause — to be present."

The mere fact that the police felt that demonstrations and riots might ensue was not sufficient ground for the police to arrest those who refused to obey their orders.

Incidentally, the court's comment that the law cannot intervene until an actual disorder takes place is interesting in view of the recent action of the President of the United States in ordering troops to Alabama on the theory that there might be disorders. The power he claimed to send troops was based upon a threatened outbreak of violence. According to the new supreme court opinion, he presumably should not have issued such orders to mobilize troops until violence actually had occurred.

The Park Incident
This week's supreme court decision makes it plain that Negroes who were playing basketball in a public park and who were themselves peaceable could not be legally arrested, and that the impact of the incident on those who opposed the use of public facilities by Negroes is not relevant.

In the South Carolina case, where the manager of a store refused to serve his Negro customers except at separate tables, the court held that, since the city ordinance requiring segregation was not constitutional, any act based upon it by an individual was also invalid.

In the Louisiana case, where there was no law requiring segregation, the supreme court took cognizance of the absence of such a statute. It ruled, however, that because city officials had publicly denounced "sit-ins" and because the store managers conferred with those officials and the police when a demonstration in the store took place, they were guilty of collaboration with city authorities. It was declared by the court that, in effect, the store was operating at the dictate of city officials.

The manager of the department store in question declared that he was maintaining segregated facilities in accordance with "state policy and practice" as well as local custom. From this, the supreme court majority drew the conclusion that the store officials were "coerced by the city." Chief Justice Warren said that "the state cannot achieve the same result by an official command which has at least as much coercive effect as an ordinance." There was no evidence that the state or city authorities had commanded the owner to maintain a segregated service. But the supreme court thought a mere statement by a city or state official concerning a publicly announced demonstration amounts to the same thing.

Ordinary Round Steak

Krambo Round Steak

Excess fat and waste can be seen in this ordinary cut of round steak.

Krambo Round Steak has no more than 1/2" fat on the outside, small bone and minimum fat on the inside.

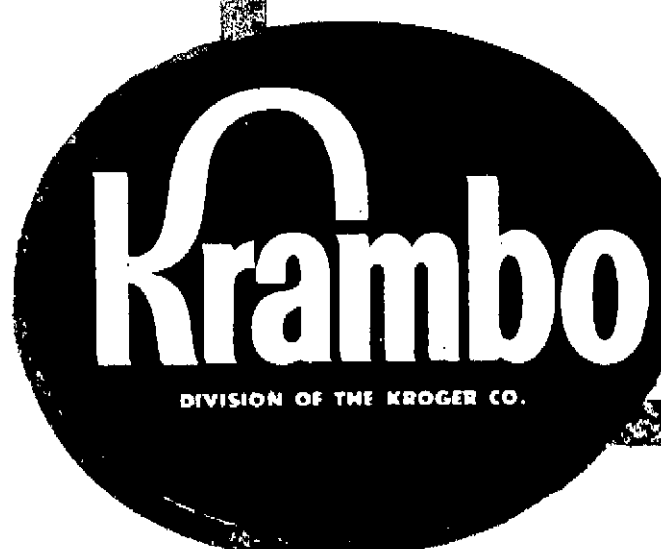

Some stores charge Round Steak prices for excess throw-away waste. But not Krambo! We remove excess center fat and trim outside fat to not more than 1/2" thickness before your steak is weighed and priced. Get more tender full flavored meat for your money when you buy a Kroger Tenderay Round Steak.

Nothing is added to Tenderay Brand Beef to make it tender. Kroger selects only U.S. Government Graded Choice Beef for Tenderay. This fresh beef is hung in meat coolers where special lamps have been installed to purify the air. Temperature and humidity are rigidly controlled to speed up nature's own way of making beef tender while it's still fresh.

Today's Chinese Confuse Fact With Fanciful Dream

Most Citizens Seem Proud Of Non-Existant Achievements

BY RICHARD P. LISTER

PEKING (AP)—They call the Communist revolution in China the Liberation. The date is Oct. 1, 1949, when Mao Tse-Tung declared the founding of the Peoples' Republic.

Third of Series

As of that date there was not a single factory capable of making needles and pins. So, at least, the Chinese declare.

Now, they say, a very high proportion of all consumer goods and industrial equipment used in China is home-made.

Real Achievement

Whatever view may be taken of the means used by the Chinese to hoist themselves up—the harshness of the system and its ruthlessness toward many individual lives — the achievement seems to be real and impressive. To judge the measure of its success, it is only necessary to compare the present state of China, 14 years after revolution, with that of Russia in 1931.

It is all the more peculiar, then, that the Chinese do not always seem content to let real achievement speak for itself. They are so full of the glories of tomorrow that sometimes they confuse them with the facts of today.

There's a steelworks at Wuhan, the university town on the Yangtze. Begun in 1957, it now employs 40,000. It reminded me of the old fashioned plant where I worked, as a trainee graduate metallurgist in England, in 1937-39.

There is nothing discreditable to the Chinese in this. The Wuhan Iron and Steel Company may be 25 years behind the times but not so long ago industrial China was 2,000 years behind. It did not exist at all.

All the same, the Chinese are not content. The planned output, they told us, is three million tons of steel a year. Very good: when would this target be achieved? This was one question they could not or would not answer. When pressed, they estimated the present output of this particular plant at one and a half million tons. But that didn't matter: what counted was the three million of tomorrow.

There were six open hearth steel furnaces but only Nos. 1 and 5 were working. This was a rather low proportion of the steelmaking capacity. One answer for this soon became apparent. The heavy rolling mill, we were told, will produce rails, girders, plate, sheet and tubes.

They are proud of their rolling mill but—it is not yet built.

Today the main output is pig iron from the three blast furnaces and cast iron, largely in the form of parts for agricultural machinery.

Still, they do produce steel.

bar, rod and strip. And since they started from scratch six years ago, this is a miracle in itself.

Our travelling group encountered this confusion between achievement and future reality all over China. At a children's palace in Shanghai — where middle school children come after hours for the usual cultural and recreational activities with a strong ideological tinge, we asked if they were especially selected.

Of course not, we were told. All children can come. Yet among the hundreds there was not one who did not wear the red neck scarf of the Pioneers, the young Communist society.

There was no conscious deception here. The Chinese really wished to believe that the children's palace was open to all, just as they wished to believe that every Chinese citizen is free to choose his own work and to come and go as he pleases. As with some other peoples, what they tell themselves three times is true.

Increase Prestige

I treasure the memory of our visit to the Wuhan steel works not only because it gave me a glimpse into a fascinating aspect of the Chinese mind but also because it greatly increased my personal prestige.

At Wuhan, hobnobbing with the open hearth men I disclosed that I once had been a steelworker myself. Steelworkers in China, like poets, have considerable prestige. At once, my status as the steelworker-poet became unassailable.

The description of myself as a former steelworker was perhaps not absolutely accurate but it was near enough. And I felt no twinge of conscience about it; one good gap between the ideal and the reality deserves another.

Area Method Of Gas Pricing Gets Comment

Supreme Court Decision Approves Uniform Technique

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The U.S. Supreme Court's approval of the area method of regulating natural gas prices brought reaction as divided as the court itself.

"Perhaps this decision will clear the way to real strides toward removing the chaotic conditions surrounding wellhead gas pricing today," said Johnny Mitchell, president of the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association.

"The long range effects could be very, very bad for consumers," said William Bennett of the California Public Utilities Commission.

Decline Comment

Many officials in the industry and in state regulatory bodies declined comment until they have a chance to study the Supreme Court decision, handed down Monday.

The court upheld, 5-4, an appeals court ruling of November 1961 that, indirectly, involved area pricing.

The ruling means this: The Federal Power Commission may continue to set gas prices at the same level. In the past the commission attempted to regulate prices individually on a cost-of-service basis.

The commission spent six years gathering and wading through data and testimony in a case involving the Phillips Petroleum Co. of Bartlesville, Okla. In 1960 it decided the individual-cost-of-service theory wasn't sound, awarded Phillips some $5.7 million of the $19 million it had asked in annual rate increases, dropped further hearings and instituted the area pricing method.

Big Backlog

At the time, the commission had a tremendous backlog of rate increase requests that would have required the same exhaustive studies of prices in relation to individual costs.

Committee Favors Tax Relief Bill For Varied Income

WASHINGTON (AP)—Tax relief for actors, authors, sports professionals and others whose income varies widely from year to year was approved by the House Ways and Means Committee.

Monday's action, which required no record vote, was the first taken by the committee since it went to work in early February on President Kennedy's tax reduction and revision program. This decision, and others to come on specific provisions of the legislation, are all subject to review before the committee sends a bill to the House.

The provision approved Monday would allow taxpayers in effect to average over previous years a sudden peak in income so as not to be thrown into an excessively high bracket. A taxpayer could use the provision when his income exceeded by more than one-third his average income for the past four years. However, the excess would have to be more than $3,000.

Tetanus is an intensely painful, often fatal disease caused by germs found in the soil and in the intestines of many animals. It occurs when these germs contaminate a penetrating skin wound, such as that caused by a nail or splinter or an automobile or farm accident.	Despite its viciousness, tetanus can be easily prevented through the use of two types of immunization. The most common is tetanus toxoid, a relatively painless inoculation which seldom causes complications. It is now given in infants with their three-in-one.	Second Type The second type of immunization is anti-tetanus serum. This must be given promptly when persons who are not immunized suffer a wound likely to be infected with tetanus germs. But sometimes causes a reaction	through immunization with tetanus toxoid. With it, tetanus is easy to prevent and you play it safe. With it, the disease is difficult to cure and it is a terrible chance to take.
As these germs multiply in the wound they produce a powerful poison known as tetanus toxin.

Connecticut Solons Make Tattoos Taboo

HARTFORD (Conn. AP) — Tattoos are taboo in Connecticut, even for sailors.

The state legislature approved recently a bill outlawing tattooing and in effect shutting tattoo parlors near the U. S. Submarine Base at Groton.

From now on, tattoos can be applied only by a doctor or under a doctor's supervision.

1963 Automobile Sales Will Topple All Records

BY SYLVIA PORTER

The U.S. automobile industry calendar 1963, an all-time record will set all-time records on every side in 1963, will at last push the Fabulous '55 into the "second best" category.

It will build at least 7,200,000 passenger cars in the 1963 model run, against 7,131,000 in the 1955 model year and representing a 7 1/2 per cent increase over 1962's output.

It will build more than 1,100,000 trucks in the 1963 calendar year, way above the 557,000 produced in 1955 and a peacetime peak.

It will achieve in April - May 1963, for the first time in history, two 700,000 plus sales months in a row.

Back-to-Back Years
It will chalk up in 1963, also for the first time in history, two great auto sales years back to back, and it will be that 1964 supply. "A decline at this time will be the third great auto sales year in a row."

It will sell more economy-size cars in 1963 than ever before, the fall-off as steep as between and, significantly, economy-size cars which are bigger, flashier, with more luxurious and more equipped with expensive gadgets than ever before.

It will taken from the American auto buying public more than $10 billion in the next six months—that dealers' inventories of used cars are low too. Sindlinger's Economic Service in its most recent survey of consumers revealed

These are out-on-a-limb predictions, but I'll risk them, for two months are up a startling 37 1/2 per cent over last year. Stunned by its own finding, Sindlinger's asked household heads, "Why?" It learned that one-third of the used car buying plans involved young people of driving age. "My son plans to buy or we plan to buy for him or her."

In late April, Ward's Automotive Reports came out with a flat forecast that sales of new cars and trucks, including auto imports, would reach 8,475,000 in 1963, an all-time record and comparing with a 1955 total of 8,423,000. But the catch in this forecast was that it assumed imports of 350,000 this year against imports of only 58,000 in 1955. Thus, the "record" actually assumed sales of U.S. made automobiles would be 91,000 under 1955's total.

Inventories Low

Ward's is not yet publicly changing this projection, but a spokesman for the authoritative research service admits that the way auto sales are surging along, "I'm making 'an intelligent gamble' with my predictions of shatter records."

One reason for optimism is that dealers' inventories of new cars are now the lowest since 1955. As of Apr. 30, dealers had only a 36 days' supply on hand, substantially down from the March 30 supply. "A decline at this time will be the third great auto sales year in a row."

Another reason for optimism is that dealers' inventories of used cars are low too. Sindlinger's Economic Service in its most recent survey of consumers revealed plans to buy used cars in the next two months are up a startling 37 1/2 per cent over last year. Stunned by its own finding, Sindlinger's asked household heads, "Why?" It learned that one-third of the used car buying plans involved young people of driving age. "My son plans to buy or we plan to buy for him or her."

Income Level Rises
A fourth reason is the steadily rising level of incomes in the U.S. There are now 17,600,000 families and single individuals—30 per cent of the total of consumer units—with incomes in the $8,000-and-up group. Buying of a second car mounts sharply at this level.

A fifth and highly important reason is the rising rate of auto scrapage. Junking of autos this year alone is estimated at 5,500,000, indicating a strong and strengthening replacement demand.

The American consumer's on-again, off-again romance with his (or her) automobile is a world-recognized thing. Never has our romance been so on-again as now—and as a result, the entire U.S. economy is "smiling."

Court Reverses Convictions in Sit-in Cases

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court overturned the convictions of sit-in demonstrators in five major cases.

The cases were from Durham, N.C.; New Orleans, Greenville, S.C., and two cases from Birmingham, Ala.

The court's action was disclosed with the release of an opinion by Justice Harlan in which he concurred in part and dissented in part with the majority's action.

It was not known immediately who delivered the majority opinion.

Presumably it was Chief Justice Warren, since he released an opinion in the case from Greenville, S.C.

Cholesterol Problem Not Really Understood

BY JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M. D. they seemed not only to curb the undue emphasis on certain aspects of the problem that may not be warranted. The trick is to separate the hocus from the popes of being harmful.

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband, following a thrombosis, read that the pectin in apples served as a natural preventer against the accumulation of cholesterol but he was told not to eat them for some blood vessels. They were very high in cholesterol. He asked two doctors. One said: "One contradiction?" — E. A.

He said apples! The explanation begins with the beneficial and ining a complete understanding of and the other said apples seem no way harmful, cholesterol. When such a situationed to help, or were suspected of single kind of fruit. The other said exists, some people tend to put it. In other words, they gave a dence, either, that any way exists to remove cholesterol once it has been deposited. Our efforts currently are aimed at trying to control the amount of free cholesterol circulating in the blood, in the hope that keeping it at moderate levels may retard further accumulation.

Eat apples if you like 'em.

Dear Dr. Molner: When children's first teeth become so loose it. It's about ready to come out anyway and the child probably will wiggle it out with the tongue, or lose it while eating.

At that stage, removal will have no effect on the second teeth. They already are pushing up behind the first ones, and whether they are crooked depends on other factors.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a two-year-old son. Is circumcision necessary? Why? If so when should it be done? — Mrs. S. P.

If the foreskin can be easily retracted and the area under it kept clean, circumcision is not necessary. However, if it is taut, and especially if there are signs of irritation, circumcision is advisable. In general, circumcision is good hygiene.

It is best done right after birth. It's far easier on a baby than years later.

Headaches! You can beat them. Write to Dr. Molner in care of this newspaper for a copy of the

Jim Maloney Fans 16 Braves in 2-0 Win

Ties Modern Record With 8 in Row

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Cincinnati right-hander Jim Maloney equaled the modern major league record of eight consecutive strikeouts and fanned a total of 16 Tuesday night in the Reds' 2-0 victory over the Milwaukee Braves.

The 22-year-old Maloney won his sixth in seven decisions but ran into control difficulties in the ninth and had to be relieved by Bill Henry. He had allowed only two hits.

Lee Maye opened the Milwaukee ninth with a walk. Hank Aaron struck out, Eddie Mathews walked and Henry came in when Maloney went to a count of two balls and no strikes on Norm Larker. Pinch hitter Joe Torre grounded out and Frank Bolling flied out, ending the game.

Handley Loser
Frank Robinson knocked in both Cincinnati runs against loser Bob Handley. In the first inning, Vada Pinson doubled and Robinson drove him home with a single. In the third, Pete Rose walked, Pinson singled and Robinson sent Rose across with a sacrifice fly. Maloney, the first pitcher to shut out the Braves this year, struck out 15 in the first seven innings and had a fine shot at the modern single game record of 18 held by Bob Feller and Sandy Koufax. However, he managed only one rest of the way.

Maloney started his string of eight straight with Eddie Mathews in the first inning. He struck out Larker, Bolling and Denny Menke.

Leading Fox Lutheran, with blue ribbons in the broad jump and pole vault, was Wayne Koenig.

Orioles Bomb 13th Straight Lefty, Have Won Seven of Last 8 Games

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer
It's bound to be a bonanza season in the American League for Baltimore and New York—as long as the Orioles keep cashing in against left-handed pitchers and the Yankees keep getting rich against their Kansas City cousins.

The Orioles trimmed the Detroit Tigers 4-2 Tuesday night, with lefty Mickey Lolich the pitching victim in his first big league start. They've compiled an amazing 11-1 record against left-hand-

Foxes Meet Clinton in Doubleheader

The Fox Cities Foxes' game with Clinton was postponed Tuesday night due to cold and threatening weather. The two teams will meet tonight in a doubleheader, with the first game slated to start at 6:30 p.m.

The Foxes' pitching staff received a shot in the arm Tuesday when Joe Rowden, a right hander who has seen limited action for the Foxes in the last two seasons, reported from Stockton of the California League.

Only one game was played in the Midwest League Tuesday night. Waterloo moved into undisputed possession of fourth place with a 7-5 victory over Wisconsin Rapids.

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Vince Lombardi, coach and general manager of the National Football League champion Green Bay Packers, says he'd like to have the St. Louis Cardinals' John David Crow but doesn't think there's much chance of getting him.

Charles Bidwell, president of the Cardinals, says there's none at all.

The report that the Packers were interested in trading for Crow popped up Tuesday as NFL owners gathered for their annual meeting, set to open today.

Information said the Packers, would like fullback Crow to fill son was third best in the league.

Nothing Startling Expected From 2-Day St. Louis Session

ST. LOUIS (AP)—On the eve of their annual spring meeting, National Football League club owners did most of their talking privately about suspensions, trade rumors and alleged betting by Baltimore Colt President Carroll Rosenbloom.

Nothing startling was expected to emerge from the two-day meeting, which officially opened with a private session today.

The owners are meeting for the first time since Commissioner Peter Rozelle suspended Paul Hornung of the Green Bay Packers and Alex Karras of the Detroit Lions for betting on games.

By JOHN L. PAUSTIAN

FOND DU LAC — The Appleton High School track team scored the most breath-taking win of its title-rich season here Tuesday night.

The potent Terrors — with a flock of clutch performances of their own and with a favorable spin from the wheel of fortune in the second-to-last event — edged talented Sheboygan South.

The Terrors zoomed their way to first place in five of the 12 events — the biggest haul of relays blue ribbons for AHS since 1952 when athletes like Carl Solberg, Jim Cowan, Jerry Hopfensperger and Don Verbrick took care of the heroics.

Despite this striking performance, the Appletonians might not have beaten out determined South (which had only one first but eight seconds) had it not been for a break on the 880-yard relay, the semi-final event of the program.

Going into the half-mile relay, South held a 39 1/2-38 lead over AHS. The Terrors ran in the first heat—which did not include South—and compiled a somewhat disappointing time of 1:37. Seeing a chance to increase their point lead, South's crack sprinters

Cardinals Edge Cubs, 5 to 4; O'Dell Wins Sixth

BY MIKE RATIET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Jim Maloney signed with Cincinnati on April Fool's Day, but he's no joke to National League batters.

The 22-year-old right-hander, who admits "I babied my arm too much" in his early days with the Reds, tied the modern major league record of eight consecutive strikeouts and fanned a total of 16 in a 2-0 victory over Milwaukee Tuesday night.

The Dodgers got a five-hit pitching performance from Johnny Podres, defeated the New York Mets for their seventh straight victory 4-2 and remained one game behind league-leading San Francisco. The Giants beat Philadelphia 3-2 as Billy O'Dell won his sixth without a loss.

St. Louis edged Chicago's Cubs 5-4 and Pittsburgh nipped Houston 6-5 in other games.

Shutout by Galen Cisco for five innings and trailing 2-0, the Dodgers put it out of reach with three runs in the sixth inning on a two-run double by Willie Davis and a single by Dick Tracewski knocked in what turned out to be the deciding run. Ron Fairly clipped in with two doubles and a single in support of Podres, now 3-3.

The Giants scored all their runs on homers by Jose Pagan's shot in the eighth inning snapping a 2-2 tie. Ed Bailey and Orlando Cepeda also connected for solo shots off Ray Culp, who went the distance for the Phillies and matched five-hitters with O'Dell. The Phillies had tied the game in the top of the eighth on Don Demeter's run-scoring single.

how soon the suspensions would be reviewed, Rozelle answered: "I said at that time (last April) that the earliest possible time these cases could be reviewed would be after the end of the 1963 season or sometime in 1964. That still stands."

Nothing Startling
Asked what will go on at the meeting, Rozelle replied that "we're going to try to settle some of the things we tabled at our winter meeting in Miami. Outside of that, there shouldn't be anything startling."

On the agenda will be discussions of television and radio rights, the Pottsville, Pa. plea for the return of the 1925 NFL title, a disaster plan, player limit, players benefit fund and rule change recommendations.

A decision had been expected on the alleged betting by Rosenbloom on league games some 10 years ago, but Rozelle said the case would not be brought up during the meeting because of a delay in the investigation.

However, that did not keep the owners from talking privately about both the Rosenbloom case and the suspensions of Hornung and Karpas.

Packer coach and general manager, Vince Lombardi, had little comment on Hornung's suspension or on the chance for a review of the case. When asked about how the suspension of the Packers' star halfback would affect the team, Lombardi said simply, "we'll get along."

Among those items that will be discussed is the league's future television policy. The NFL is operating on the last year of a two-year $9,300,000 package with the Columbia Broadcasting Co. The recently-completed one-year contract for $925,000 with the National Broadcasting Co. for the championship game also will be discussed.

Rule changes to be discussed include an amendment to increase the roster from 36 to 38 players.

'No One Ever Threw Harder' Mathews, Aaron Show Respect for Maloney

BY DAVE O'HARA

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Take the word of the Milwaukee Braves: There isn't a harder throwing pitcher in the business than right-hander Jim Maloney of the Cincinnati Reds.

The 22-year-old Maloney equaled the modern major league record of eight consecutive strikeouts and fanned 16 although he needed relief help Tuesday night in a two-hit, 2-0 victory over the Braves.

"I never saw anyone throw better," said Milwaukee slugger Eddie Mathews, who struck out three times. "Certainly, no one has ever thrown harder. And believe me, the fast ball was moving. It sailed away from me."

"If anyone can throw any harder, I know I don't want to see him," said Hank Aaron, who struck out only once but was handcuffed in three other trips to the plate.

Maloney whiffed 15 Braves in the first seven innings and the modern major league mark of 18 shared by Bob Feller and Sandy Koufax appeared in danger. How in the eighth and struck out only Aaron in the ninth before he needed help from reliever Bill Henry.

Preserves Victory
Henry was summoned from the bullpen after Maloney issued his third and fourth walks and threw two balls on Norm Larker with only one out. Henry retired two batters in a row preserving Maloney's sixth victory against one defeat and the first shutout thrown against the Braves this season.

"I got a little tired," Maloney admitted. "According to the chart I threw 142 pitches, including a lot of fast balls. My best pitch is the fast ball, but I don't know any pitcher who can throw that for nine innings without tiring."

Maloney began his assault on the strikeout record by fanning with one year remaining on his contract. He coached the Royals three seasons. Wolf will receive an estimated $14,000 annually as the mid-mannered Dick McGuire's successor in Detroit.

McGuire resigned from the Pistons last month, saying he was tired of being second guessed. He was the Pistons' coach 3 1/2 seasons.

Freer Hand
Zollner indicated Wolf would have a freer hand in running the Pistons than the previous three coaches in the six years since the club was moved here from Fort Wayne, Ind.

"We'll give the new coach a delegation of authority we wanted to before but were unable to do," said Zollner. "We'll leave everything in his hands except player trades when I expect he'll confer with me."

Wolf said he made the jump to the Pistons because of the impending change in ownership of the Cincinnati franchise.

in the second. Del Crandall, Hendley and Mack Jones in the third, and Maye leading off the fourth. Aaron ended the streak by grounding out.

The eight consecutive strikeouts matched the record set by Max Surkont of Milwaukee in 1953 and tied by Johnny Podres of the Los Angeles Dodgers last year.

Mathews struck out three times and Jones, Larker, Bolling, Menke and Crandall twice each. Every Milwaukee starter fanned at least once.

The only hits off Maloney were Maye's single to left center in the first and Len Gabrielson's pop fly hit to short left in the sixth.

when he connected with one on off Diego Segui. New York got 11 of its 12 hits and all seven runs against Pena and Segui in the first five innings. Roger Maris also homered for the Yanks, and Elston Howard rapped three singles.

Jim Bouton won for the fifth time in six decisions although he was far from overpowering. He gave up six hits, including homers by Norm Siebern and Gino Cimoli, and five walks before being replaced by Steve Hamilton in the sixth.

127-44
The Yankees' won-lost bulge over the A's in eight seasons plus now stands at 127-44.

The White Sox built up a 4-0 lead at Washington with the help of a three-run sixth inning, but barely outlasted the Senators.

Held to four hits and one run through eight innings, the Senators made it a squeaker against reliever Hoyt Wilhelm when Don Lock homered with one on in the ninth and Ken Retzer singled—all with none out. But the knuckleballer turned away the next three men, saving the victory for John Buzhardt, now 4-1.

Mike Hershberger's third straight single triggered the White Sox' decisive sixth. Joe Cunningham followed with a double. Floyd Robinson singled, and Ron Hansen whacked a two-run single after a walk to Dave Nicholson.

The Twins collected their seven runs in the third against Red Sox rookie star Dave Morehead and reliever Jack Lamabe on Vic Power's triple, an double by Bob Allison, four singles, two walks and a wild pitch. It paved the way for Minnesota's fifth victory in the last six games and made it a breeze for right-hander Jim Perry. He evened his record at 2-2 with an eight-hitter.

Earl Battey socked a homer for the Twins, while back-to-back homers by Lu Clinton and Dick Stuart in the fourth accounted for the Boston runs.

Berlin Makes Surprise Bid for 1968 Olympics

BERLIN, Germany (AP)—Avery Brundage and other leading Olympic officials have thrown support behind the surprise bid of Berlin to play host to the 1968 Olympic Games.

"It would be a victory of sport over politics," Otto Mayer, chancellor of the International Olympic Committee said in Lausanne, Switzerland, Tuesday.

He said the IOC welcomed the surprise bid by Mayor Willy Brandt of West Berlin.

"This would be a great triumph for amateur sports and the Olympic movement and it would put political wrangling to shame," Brundage, president of the IOC, said in Chicago.

"It would be a triumph at least when we had East and West Germany marching together behind the Olympic flag in the past two summer and winter Olympics," Brundage said.

Success of the project hinged on the cooperation of the Communist East Germans. Their co-operation would mean, in effect, lowering the Communist wall.

There has been no official comment from East Germany, but West Berlin sources said East Berlin officials have reacted favorably to the plan.

The surprise suggestion was made in a letter from Brandt to Mayer earlier in the year. The proposal was kept secret for some time, awaiting comment from East Germany.

The Olympic Games were last held in Berlin in 1936 when Adolf Hitler was chancellor and his goose-stepping legions ruled the country.

Facilities used in those games are on both sides of the wall that now divides Berlin. Mayer said it would be impossible to hold the games in Berlin unless both sides co-operated and made full facilities available.

Five other cities have applied for the 1968 games. They are Detroit, Mexico City, Buenos Aires, Vienna and Lyons, France. Detroit and Lyons were considered the favorites until the bid by Berlin.

Decision on the site will be made at a meeting of the International Olympic Committee at Nairobi, Kenya, Oct. 19.

Bob Martin had rounds of 72 and 78 to lead golfers at Butte des Morts.

Other sub-zero scores included Dave Buchberger, 79; Ray Doell, 79; Dirk Spangenberg, 78 and Herb Stinski, 75.

Pistons Lure Charley Wolf From Royals

Coach Signs 2-Year Pact With New Club

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Pistons lured Charley Wolf away from the Cincinnati Royals because of his reputation as an aggressive, take-charge basketball coach.

"He's a take-charge guy and that's just what we've needed," said Fred Zollner, millionaire industrialist Pistons owner, after signing Wolf Tuesday for the next two National Basketball Association seasons.

Wolf quit Cincinnati's NBA club with one year remaining on his contract. He coached the Royals three seasons. Wolf will receive an estimated $14,000 annually as the mid-mannered Dick McGuire's successor in Detroit.

McGuire resigned from the Pistons last month, saying he was tired of being second guessed. He was the Pistons' coach 3 1/2 seasons.

Freer Hand
Zollner indicated Wolf would have a freer hand in running the Pistons than the previous three coaches in the six years since the club was moved here from Fort Wayne, Ind.

"We'll give the new coach a delegation of authority we wanted to before but were unable to do," said Zollner. "We'll leave everything in his hands except player trades when I expect he'll confer with me."

Wolf said he made the jump to the Pistons because of the impending change in ownership of the Cincinnati franchise.

IOC Welcomes Move

Berlin Makes Surprise Bid for 1968 Olympics

BERLIN, Germany (AP)—Avery Brundage and other leading Olympic officials have thrown support behind the surprise bid of Berlin to play host to the 1968 Olympic Games.

"It would be a victory of sport over politics," Otto Mayer, chancellor of the International Olympic Committee said in Lausanne, Switzerland, Tuesday.

He said the IOC welcomed the surprise bid by Mayor Willy Brandt of West Berlin.

"This would be a great triumph for amateur sports and the Olympic movement and it would put political wrangling to shame," Brundage, president of the IOC, said in Chicago.

"It would be a triumph at least when we had East and West Germany marching together behind the Olympic flag in the past two summer and winter Olympics," Brundage said.

Success of the project hinged on the cooperation of the Communist East Germans. Their co-operation would mean, in effect, lowering the Communist wall.

There has been no official comment from East Germany, but West Berlin sources said East Berlin officials have reacted favorably to the plan.

The surprise suggestion was made in a letter from Brandt to Mayer earlier in the year. The proposal was kept secret for some time, awaiting comment from East Germany.

The Olympic Games were last held in Berlin in 1936 when Adolf Hitler was chancellor and his goose-stepping legions ruled the country.

Facilities used in those games are on both sides of the wall that now divides Berlin. Mayer said it would be impossible to hold the games in Berlin unless both sides co-operated and made full facilities available.

Five other cities have applied for the 1968 games. They are Detroit, Mexico City, Buenos Aires, Vienna and Lyons, France. Detroit and Lyons were considered the favorites until the bid by Berlin.

Decision on the site will be made at a meeting of the International Olympic Committee at Nairobi, Kenya, Oct. 19.

Cubs' Lou Brock Could be One of The Greatest, Says Bob Kennedy

CHICAGO (AP) — Lou Brock is a serious, intelligent young man with a chance of becoming a great baseball player.

He has so much potential that head coach Bob Kennedy of the Chicago Cubs doesn't hesitate a second when he says "Brock could be one of the greatest."

Kennedy's opinion of Brock is not an isolated case of praise for one's own player. Brock's teammates, other players and managers in the National League have a high regard for his unpolished ability.

Even Chicago Cub fans, who earlier in the season were jeering Brock's attempts to win the right field job, are starting to notice the possibilities of the 23-year-old speedster.

Much Ability
"He has so much ability, you really don't know how good he'll be," says Kennedy. "He could be one of the greatest. He has all of the God given gifts."

In addition to the gifts of running, throwing and hitting, Brock is determined to make good and works hard at it. He came to the Cubs with just one year of minor league experience. He didn't burn up the league in 1962—his rookie year—and finished with a .263 average while playing center field.

He was switched to right field this season where he had some difficulties during the first few weeks of the campaign.

"I had a good spring and was determined to get off to a fast start," says Brock. "I had some trouble playing right field the first couple of weeks and seemed to lose my confidence. I was playing against Curt Simmons Tuesday in line on the road but at home it was different.

"Every time a ball was hit my way, I would tighten up, wonder if I would fail to catch it. Then last week against Cincinnati Vada Pinson hit a ball high against the wall and I caught it. That's what I really needed and my confidence came back. Now I feel I can catch anything."

Brock omitted the fact that he has been coming out early every day to chase fly balls in the corners and up against the walls but he did admit he's learning something every day.

Brock's swings left handed and gradually has been hitting better against left-handed pitchers. He had four hits off the great Warren Spahn Sunday and two more against Curt Simmons Tuesday in a 5-4 loss to St. Louis in which Brock scored three of the Cub runs.

"I learned something from Simmons," said Brock. "The second time up he came in with a chest high tight fast ball. I fell away and it was a third strike. When I look at the ball. So I experimented. The next time up I faced him a little more by opening up my stance. When he gave me the same pitch I saw it all the way."

Brock tripled and then singled in his final two bats against Simmons.

"It's simply a matter of time and experience with Brock," says Kennedy. "We're waiting for him to get more experience and a good idea of what he's supposed to do. Then watch him go."

Let's EXPLORE YOUR MIND
By Sylvanus M. Duvall, Ph.D. and Evelyn M. Duvall, Ph.D.

No, not as much as we do. In a certain club, one member always "volunteered" to run the social and other events. The other members appreciated his efforts especially because he always did a good job. But he also kept other people from chances for leadership, and some people strongly resented his. It would have been far better if his friends had not been so careful to spare his feelings.

Can an unwanted child be really loved? Your opinion—

Some parents who did not welcome their children are conscientious in providing them with food, shelter, medical attention and all kinds of extras. But usually something very important is lacking. They may be unduly strict and sharp, so that the child feels rejected despite a room full of toys. They may be overly concerned about the child's safety, perhaps as an indirect way of hurting him by making him more fearful and dependent. The unwanted child is one of society's greatest problems.

Are some revolutions more "revolutionary" than others?

Yes. Until recently, revolutionary movements, including our own Revolutionary War, were mainly efforts to gain political independence. Most, and the most important, aspects of life remained essentially the same. Revolutionary movements, like fascism and communism, however, seek and sometimes achieve a basic change in the whole of life, including the hopes, fears, wishes, aspirations, economic organizations, education and even religion of the people. Compared to earlier revolutions they include more aspects of life, and they affect them more profoundly.

Young Hobby Club

Winner of Add-Subtract Contest Gets Book Set

BY CAPPY DICK

By adding together the names of the objects in the picture, then subtracting certain letters, can you arrive at the name of a flower?

It can be done! For doing it and sending in a neat entry that is original in appearance, you may win (1) a packet containing everything needed to make yourself a leather hobby emblem to wear Indian-style around your neck and (2) a set of three educational books as a national prize.

The hobby emblem packet is to real fun. In it is a piece of pre-cut and pre-punched leather in the shape of a shield about three inches square, a 33-inch thong on which to lace the emblem and a set of designs you can use to decorate the leather by tooling, carving or drawing.

Five of these packets will be awarded, one for each of the five neatest, most original correct solutions to the puzzle. The entries winning these preliminary prizes will be considered in the national judging, along with preliminary prize winners from all other cities where this column appears, to find the five best entries of all. These will win the sets of three big books, all published by Scott, Foresman and Company. One book is the Advanced Junior Dictionary which defines many thousands of words; another is "Everyday Problems in Science" and the third is "In All Our States," which tells many facts about every state in the Union.

Requires Study

The puzzle requires study to solve. Decide what each object in the picture is. Add together the letters in their names. Then subtract the letter "A" and the name of the object beside it. The six letters that remain (if you have proceeded correctly), plus one additional letter which you must add, will spell the seven-letter name of a flower. Print it in the space provided.

Clip out the picture, paste it on paper or a postal card, print your name, age and address beneath it, and decorate it in any neat, original way. Mail it to Cappy Dick's Midweek Contest at the Appleton Post-Crescent before midnight of day after tomorrow.

Winners names will be printed here. They will receive their prizes by mail. Judges' decisions will be final. All entries become Cappy Dick's property; none can be returned.

Terrors Edge South to Win Relays Crown

went out with a vengeance in their section.

The Redmen enjoyed a comfortable edge over their pursuers, going into the anchor leg. Then came the break—that once-in-a-career slip that's always hard to explain. South's veteran Al Mueller dropped the baton just after he started out on the final 220 leg. The South runner used up precious time in retrieving the baton. Mueller still produced a strong finish in the heat, but South's time of 1:37.3 was only fifth best, over-all.

AHS finished fourth in the event, chipped a point off South's lead and trailed, just 49.1 to 40, with only the pole-vauling points still to come in.

When the last South vaulter was eliminated, victory was assured for the Terrors because they still had one competitor in the running. Dale Uecker, Mark Feltheim and Russ Kamine gave AHS a third place—and the decisive three points—in the pole vault. Uecker's 10 feet was tops for the Terrors.

AHS led South for the first eight events—by margins of only 1 to 3 1/2 points—in the sizzling duel. South led for the next three events before seeing victory elude its grasp.

For the Terrors, who are coached by head mentor Keith Kohlman and assistants Herb Simon and Gene VandenHeuvel, this marks the fourth major multi-team championship won in this comeback season. The other titles came in the FRVC indoor meet, the Papermaker relays and the Green Bay sectional.

Terror standouts were numerous last night, but in the front ranks were the versatile scoring twins, Mike Woehler and Chuck McKee, who helped rack up three of the team's five firsts—in the shuttle hurdles, the broad jump and the high jump.

McKee's jump of 21 feet, 2 inches set the pace in the broad jump. Scott Hetherington added 20.5 and Woehler 19.3. The combined distance of 60 feet, 10 inches was one of AHS' best ever and came within 9 1/2 inches of the relays record.

Woehler, McKee and Jim Dunsmuir all went 5-9 in the high jump—and their combined 17-3 fell 3 inches shy of the relays record. McKee and Woehler teamed with Terry Maves and Ken Kitzinger to win the hurdles event.

Tim Kranzusch played a big role in a first and a third for AHS. The husky senior recorded the longest shot put in his career—51 feet, 3 1/2 inches—to lead the Terrors to a team victory total of 135-10. Only two Terrors have ever had longer throws in competition—Bob Brandt, in 1948, and Bill Borum, in '58.

Kranzusch teamed with Jim Mahloch and Jim Linsmeier in the discus. North's Trier had the best individual effort—149-10 1/2.

A strong medley-relay performance gave AHS its fifth event victory. Gary Hietpas started it all with a good 440-yard run. Jerry Fishop and Cliff Lieder blazed to a pair of lead-producing 220-yard legs. Anchor-man Dick Bunn reeled off a strong 880 to win the heat by more than 30 yards.

AHS' medley time of 3:46.2 bettered head-winner South's clocking (3:45.8).

Appleton harvested an important second in the 2-mile relay. Dave Goehler, Dick Popp, Terry Grapengeter and Dennis Brinkman ran second to South in a race that was close most of the way.

AHS added three third places, two fourths and a fifth. The Terrors scored in every event, South was blanked only in the pole vault.

Despite the unfavorable conditions that prevailed, one record was broken, North's 4-mile relay team turned in a 19:24.4 performance to better the record set last year by Appleton—19:26.2. North's runners were Dan Ehler, Pete Van Handel, Glen Sanville and Edo Weits.

Oshkosh finished sixth, with 14 points. The Indians took one first, as vaulting ace Bill Steinhilber paced the team in a 28-6 total height with an 11-6 effort.

Rain fell during the early-starting field events and didn't let up until the beginning of the running events. The temperature was in the 40s.

Kirk Douglas Off to Broadway Once Again

Successful as Movie Star, Wants To Fulfill Dream of Stage Work

BY HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—A man never quite gets over the dreams of his youth. And if he's a stubborn man he never quite trying to make them come true.

Film star Kirk Douglas, despite a deceptive dimple in his big square chin, is a very stubborn man indeed.

So, after completing his 39th movie, "The List of Adrian Messing," a mystery melodrama directed by John Huston, Douglas has decided to live up to his motto. He's going to take another chance on Broadway, a street where he failed to win fame earlier in his career but which sprang-boarded him to Hollywood and big stardom. Douglas plans to open here next November in a drama called "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest."

I wanted to make it on the stage. "In a sense I'm trying to do what I've wanted to do for a long time. And I felt if I didn't do it now, I'd get too scared."

Douglas plans to open here next November in a drama called "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest."

His planned furlough from the camera, Kirk hopes, will also provide him a welcome release for a time from the often chafing or loot even temporarily, for a risky adventure where he tried nine times before and lost?

"Because I'm nuts," said Kirk while that simple dream of just

Tipsy Drivers Found Guilty

Motorists From West DePere, Menasha Fined

Robert Skenandore, 31, route 2, West DePere, and Ervin B. Larson, 225 1/2 Main St., Menasha, have pleaded guilty to charges of drunken driving.

Skenandore appeared Monday in Outagamie County Court, Branch 2, and Larson was arraigned by Winnebago County Judge James Sitter in Oshkosh Tuesday.

Skenandore was ordered to pay a fine of $175 or spend 65 days in the county jail. Larson's fine was $100 and his license was suspended for one year. Skenandore was also fined $15 or eight days in jail for driving without a license.

Menasha police arrested Larson on Main Street when he was seen driving erratically Sunday night. Skenandore was arrested by county police in the Town of Oneida when his car was reported stuck in the woods about one-half mile from the roadway. Skenandore said he drove off the road, and into the woods so he could sleep. He was taken to the county jail. He was not examined by a doctor.

Fines, Jail Term Await Those Who Deface CD Sign

The yellow and black fallout shelter signs posted on public and private buildings must not be touched by the public, Civil Defense Director Lee E. Penney said today.

He said that the signs were furnished by the federal government to indicate designated fallout shelters and are for the protection of the public.

The theft or damage of government property can lead to heavy fines or imprisonment. Theft of federal property valued at less than $100 carries a fine of up to $1,000 or imprisonment for up to a year. This also applies to shelter signs.

Penney asked anyone who sees the signs being defaced or removed to call the nearest police department. Owners of buildings where the shelter signs were posted were asked to notify his office if signs are molested.

Basis for Agreement

The intelligent suggestions made for settling the work rules issue in the railroad industry by the emergency board appointed by President Kennedy will provide a basis for settling the matter without a crippling railroad strike if the railroad unions and rail managements look at them with open minds.

The principal problem is what to do with thousands of firemen no longer needed on diesel locomotives. The board proposes these steps:

- * That a nationwide rule be laid down defining where a fireman is needed to insure safety.
- * That firemen hired after they knew their jobs would not be permanent, and firemen who have not been working recently, be released.
- * That firemen with less than 10 years' seniority retain employment rights unless offered another acceptable job.
- * That firemen with more than 10 years' seniority also retain employment rights, but with the possibility of being re-trained for other jobs or retired early.

Such a recommendation would result in eventual elimination of unnecessary firemen without undue hardship to the men involved. It also would solve the problem of state legislation on this subject such as Wisconsin's, which requires five - man crews on all engines regardless of need.

Appointment of the emergency board under the Railway Labor Act was a procedure designed to provide a cooling-off period before a strike, and to recommend an impartial solution of the problem. The board has recommended that collective bargaining be continued in the hope of arriving at a solution along the lines it suggests, but that if such bargaining fails the issues be submitted to arbitration.

Certainly both railroad management and labor can now reach agreement if they want to.

Parades

Hundreds of Appleton residents are hard at work making the preliminary arrangements for the annual Memorial Day (May 30) and Flag Day (June 15) parades.

Too often many of us are inclined to take some of these community-wide undertakings for granted and fail to realize the countless hours of work, planning and the expense that go into them.

We offer our congratulations to the volunteer workers and various organizations for their patriotic and community spirit. Without their unselfish effort, Appleton would not have the observances that should always be a part of our American tradition.

Needless to say, we urge residents of Appleton and the entire Fox Cities region to turn out en masse for these coming events. In doing so you will not only participate in the observances, but will also be saying "Thank you" to the hard-working citizens who made them possible.

More 'Green Spots'

A few "green spots" here and there can make a lot of difference. You don't have to take our word for it; see for yourself.

The next time you drive to downtown Appleton make it a point to get a glimpse at the city's new West Ramp parking structure which faces on N. Division Street, less than a half block from College Avenue.

Although completed in December and put into use by motorists since then, the modern - looking, functional structure seemed a bit bare until the city decided to have a little landscape work done recently.

Several shrubs were planted in front of the ramp and the end result was most satisfying. The city's "green spots" added that certain touch which makes the public facility look more attractive.

Appleton's downtown could use more "green spots". They don't have to be expensive undertakings, but they do make a difference.

The Packaging Revolution

The radical change that has taken place in merchandising methods and shopping habits in this country also has caused almost a revolution in the packaging industry. With the emphasis nowadays on super-markets and self-service, the neighborhood grocer who used to recommend one product over another has just about vanished from the scene. Even brand names have become somewhat less important with the rapid rise of private labels. This has put a burden on products to speak for themselves from crowded store shelves.

Consumers this year are being solicited by a record offering of new boxes, bottles, bags and other containers. Expenditures for packaging are up some 35 per cent from 1955.

No-key cans of coffee are kept fresh by a polyethylene cover, and elimination of that struggle with those key - opening cans will probably please many a housewife. That early morning jangle of milk bottles is gradually disappearing with the increased use of cartons. Plastic cigaret packages are now being marketed which can be dunked in water—fishermen please note. Aluminum-top beer cans requiring no opener are growing in use. Canned foods soon can be cooked and served in the original container.

Most of these changes will be cheered by the public. When the packaging revolution got under way it appeared that manufacturers were trying to create as much mystery as possible over how to get them open. The trend toward easier openers is a great relief.

Remember Little Rock?

Buried on an inside page of the New York Times recently was a small news article that the school board in Little Rock, Arkansas, has assigned 38 more Negroes to desegregated schools in that city, bringing to 102 the number of Negroes who will attend desegregated junior and senior high schools next fall.

What a contrast with the news from Little Rock several years ago!

It proves that integration will work when the planning is intelligent on both sides, and when administration of the problem is turned over to high-minded citizens.

Looking Backward

Rebels Bottled Up in Vicksburg

100 YEARS AGO
Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for May 30, 1863.

Accounts from Vicksburg are still conflicting. In the Battle of Champion Hill the Federals lost 17,000 wounded. They took 3,000 prisoners in that battle and 3,000 more at the Black River bridge.

Vicksburg was attacked on May 19 and a complete line of fortifications taken with a Federal loss of 1,500 men.

Reports from Sherman's Landing to Saturday say that Pemberton offered to surrender the city on certain conditions which Gen. Grant refused to allow, that an assault was made shortly afterwards in which, after severe Federal loss, the rebels were driven to their last line of entrenchments, that the Federals had captured batteries both above and below the city and that Gen. Logan was guarding the Black River with a sufficient force to keep (rebel) Johnston back.

Johnston is reported to be receiving large reinforcements.

Rebel reports are that the Federals have been foiled in their efforts, their loss being 10,000 men, that Vicksburg has five months of supplies and can be taken only when these supplies are exhausted.

25 YEARS AGO
Wednesday, May 18, 1938.

Vernie Frink was elected president of the newly organized Dramatic Club, of First Congregation Church, Appleton. Robert Aires was named secretary-treasurer. Mrs. Lawrence Burley was the club consultant and the group was planning to present the one-act play, "Easy Money."

Honor students at Clintonville High School who were to present addresses at commencement exercises were Delores Zehren, valedictorian, and Marian Miller, salutatorian.

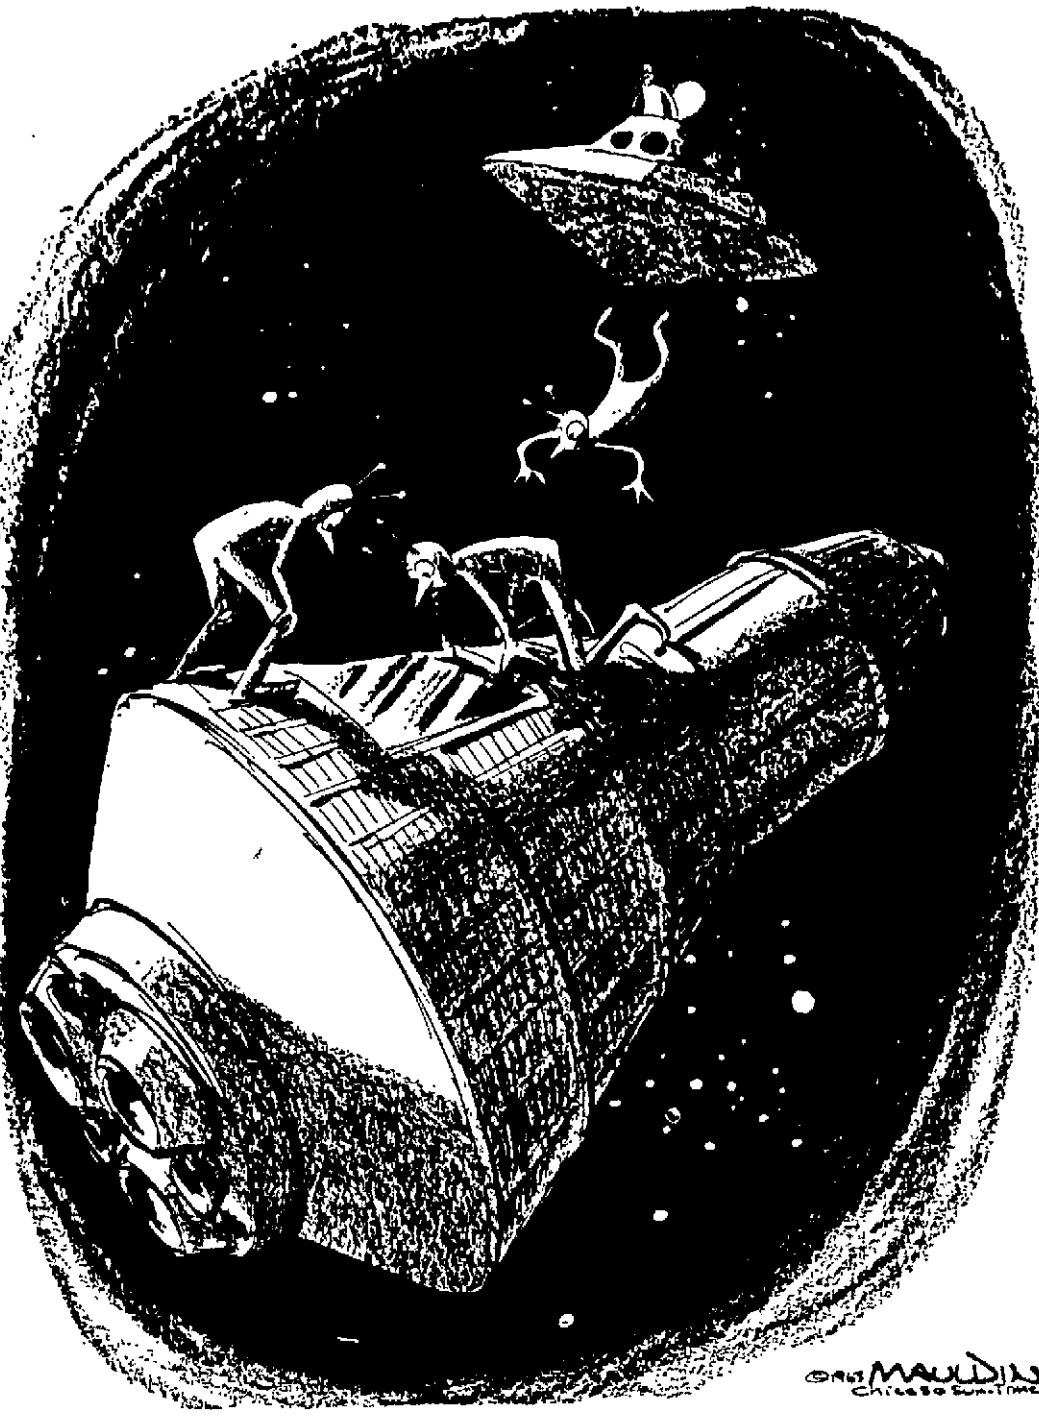

James Fieweger was the star performer who helped bring the track and field championship to Kimberly High School in the Little Nine Conference meet at Whiting Field. Fieweger won firsts in the high hurdles, high jump and discus to chalk up 15 of Kimberly's total 61 points. He set a new record in the hurdles with his 15 seconds performance. Lawrence Ziewacz, Seymour, was the only other record maker at the meet, turning in a 55.4 in the 440-yard run to break the 56.6 seconds record of 1946.

10 YEARS AGO
Wednesday, May 20, 1953.
Clarence Toeppler, Neenah police captain, was elected secretary of the Wisconsin Policeman's Protective Association and Norbert Marx, Appleton detective was reelected to the state board of directors at the convention in Superior. Patrolman Robert Allgeyer, Appleton, was cited for meritorious service in 1952.

George Edlebeck, Manawa High School principal, was elected president of the Manawa Lions Club. John Van Raalte was reelected secretary, a post he had held for 20 years. Other new officers included William Mathig, Ralph Quimby, Arthur Schuelke, vice presidents; Edward Jones, Lion tamer, Norman Dellman, tail twister, Leonard Goetz and William Voss, directors. Hold-over directors were L. M. Lamkins and W. W. Schald.

Mrs. Robert Spooner, Appleton, was elected president of Charity Circle of King's Daughters. She succeeded Mrs. Carl Rechner. Other new officers were Mrs. Kenneth Milhaupt, vice president, Mrs. Charles de Young, secretary, Mrs. William T. Ducklow, treasurer, and Mrs. James Thielman, publicity chairman. Appointed to the executive board were Mrs. Harland Moder and Mrs. Robert Schmieder.

Consider Parochial School Aid From Educational Standpoint

Editor, Post-Crescent:

Now there arises another vital and controversial issue with which our lawmakers have to wrestle—the matter of state aid for education in parochial schools. Admittedly this is a ticklish question, but it should not be if we fearlessly take a realistic and unbiased look at the problem.

First of all let us ask: what is the real purpose of a public school system? Is it not to assure adequate education for all children and eliminate illiteracy which is the bane of a free and democratic way of life?

By what standard then shall the method of financing school systems be approved or disapproved. Shall it be on the basis of extra curricular matter or shall it be on the basis of an adequate curriculum of a minimum standard for all schools set by the department of public education?

It is my firm conviction that, if we will avoid a practice of regimentation and brain washing in our free country, any school, be it public or private Catholic or Protestant, Christian or heathen is entitled to share equally in state aid provided its secular curriculum measures up to the minimum standard set for public schools and that its teachers carry a state teacher's certificate.

Does not a parochial school which measures up to such a standard render a public service equal to that of a public school? What difference can it make what kind of extra curricular subjects are taught so long as the public is free to choose which school to send their children to.

To deny to parochial schools a share of state aid to education because of religious teaching is tantamount to prohibition of the free exercise of religion and therefore a violation of the first amendment of the U. S. constitution.

Are not religious people citizens and taxpayers? and do they not contribute their share to school taxes? Why then should they be denied the benefits thereof?

There is a widespread misconception of what constitutes a mixture of church and state. What about the use of public park for a picnic by any religious group? Could such an affair be called a mixture of church and state? By no means!

The purpose of the first amendment, to the U. S. constitution is to avoid religious compulsion upon the public but not to abolish religion in this our free country. Atheists in our midst would like to use it to that end if they could.

No doubt the above interpretation of the rights of citizens regardless of religious inclination will be viewed with consternation by our state governing officials who are even now at loggerheads with each other over tax problems.

But to look upon the situation as purely an economic basis would be an admission that the religious angle is but a subterfuge by which it is hoped to eliminate certain taxpayers from sharing in the benefits of their tax money.

I might be asked: how then would I solve the tax problem that would be involved? I say that would be quite simple.

First let us be reminded that public services, be they what they may, must be paid for, and someone must foot the bill. That someone will be every taxpayer.

Now then as to the solution of the tax problem for education I will say let the extra cost now being born by supporters of education in the parochial schools be absorbed into the general school taxes collected by the state and thus prorated to all taxpayers. Thus all of us will more equitably share in the total bill for education. As I have indicated earlier, it is not religion that we are asked to support but education for children.

In conclusion let me make it clear that I am not motivated in my thinking by any personal interest in any specific religion. Nor have I any children to send to school yet I pay school taxes.

My interest stems from the proposition as set down in Sec. 1 of our state constitution: (1e) "All men are born equally free and independent and have certain inherent rights." No one can claim rights without recognizing responsibilities.

Erroneous thinking, if not brought to light may well bring about our loss of those rights and our cherished freedoms.

Raps Writer of Editorial About Liberty Amendment

Editor, Post-Crescent:

If you plan to publish any more editorials on the Liberty Amendment, it is to be hoped that your editorial writer will spend a few minutes of his precious time learning what the amendment is all about.

To compare the proponents of the Liberty Amendment with the anarchists, as was recently done by this paper, shows only that your writer understands something about the philosophy of anarchy, and nothing at all about the Liberty Amendment.

There are two different viewpoints concerning the amendment, but you failed to mention either one. The first is that of the democratic socialists, such as John Kenneth Galbraith has described in his book "The Affluent Society," which holds that the American people are not mentally or morally equipped to handle their own affairs, and must rely on self - styled "experts" in government to spend their money for them.

The opposing philosophy is that of the supporters of the Liberty Amendment. They believe that a return to constitutional government, as envisioned by our early forefathers, is the only hope of saving America from creeping socialism and eventual communism. The basic tenets of the Liberty Amendment are an end to socialistic, centralized government, and a return to our federal system and state's rights.

This philosophy is not revolutionary, as your writer believes. It was well set forth almost two centuries ago by James Madison, Thomas Jefferson and others of their belief. It is explained in detail in a new book by Lloyd G. Herbstreith and Gordon van B. King, entitled "Action for Americans, The Liberty Amendment."

I would suggest your writer read both these books for a better understanding of the political philosophies now being debated in America. This knowledge will save him from the pitfalls of writing editorials comparing constitutional government with anarchy and unilateral disarmament.

Court Test Coming On Legislature's Ignoring Governor

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — The legislature is preparing to suspend its deliberations early next month, to permit its members to return to their private work in law offices, in stores and insurance agencies, in factories and on farms.

Its departure won't be labeled an adjournment, however. It will be called a recess. Such matters as are left behind unresolved will remain alive and available for action when the lawmakers return, which probably will be three or four months hence, at the call of their majority Republican leaders.

So the question will arise: when is the legislature not in session?

In the technicalities of politics, it is an extremely important question, involving the legislature's relations with the executive, and to a considerable extent, the executive's powers and privileges.

The governor is a considerably more important man when the legislature is not in session than when it is in session, quite aside from such personal irritations as the legislative presence may contribute.

THE SITUATION

As Gov. Reynolds complained the other day, this legislature is trying to deprive him of his right to name administrative officials of the state government by the device of failing to call up his nominations for action, either affirmative or negative. As far as the law is now known, the legislature could follow that practice indefinitely, through the whole of the governor's term, by repeated recesses as substitutes for the adjournments of other days.

While the legislature is adjourned, the governor can make interim appointments, as in the case of deaths or retirements, or whatever. While it remains in session, his appointments are subject to the review and possible veto of the state senate.

If the legislature adjourns sine die—as the Latinized phraseology of the legislative rule book puts it—he can veto its last acts with impunity. If it remains in recess, instead, the vetoes remain on the legislative calendar and can be overridden when the lawmakers choose to resume their deliberations. In many other ways the legislature can checkmate the executive, if it remains technically in session, which is the reason why the recess device was originated long ago and why it has gradually been extended so that the recess as a way to end the regular session has now become the accepted rule rather than an emergency device.

TEST COMING

Sooner or later this rule of convenience, this invention of practical convenience in the politics of latter day Wisconsin, will have its test in the courts.

The governor says he intends to appeal to the courts when this legislature leaves town—with-out specifying if he is thinking about the recess or the sine die adjournment. He says the courts will agree with him that the senate's refusal to act one way or another on his appointments to administrative offices is a devious and illegal method of depriving him of his rightful powers and responsibilities. The argument has a certain plausibility while no senate action on any of his nominations is apparently scheduled. But what if the senate acts on one or two or three of his choices—and after due deliberation—rejects them? Will the governor have a case then? It is an interesting avenue of speculation.

Two years ago former Gov. Nelson thought to make a constitutional test of his own row with the legislative Republicans by issuing a call for a special session of the legislature—which is his prerogative — while the legislature was in recess at its own initiative. The legislative leadership then thought it best to avoid a constitutional showdown, and returned to the capitol at its own decision — on the same day that the governor had named for the special session.

Strictly Personal

Mr. Harris Dissects Famous Quotation

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

One of the most famous quotations in the world, which has been attributed to everyone from Marcus Aurelius to Robert Louis Stevenson, is this:

"I expect to pass through this world but once; any good thing, therefore, that I can do, or any kindness that I can show to my fellow-creatures, let me do it now; let me not defer or neglect it, for I shall not pass this way again."

Although praised by many as a truly scriptural sentiment, it is utter nonsense high - minded nonsense of the sort that sounds good in a speech, but means nothing in either philosophical or practical terms.

For those people whose good impulses are in the ascendant, such a stimulant is not needed; and for those very many more whose bad impulses too often dominate, the sentiment is worthless—because they will draw precisely the opposite conclusions from it.

"I shall not pass this way again." Then why does it matter what I do? Why not ruin the fields, deforest the woods, litter the roads, pollute the streams, trample the flowers, and treat people as a mere means to one's own ends?

This quotation admirably illustrates, indeed, the deep difference between genuine religious feeling and specious sentimentality. If the determining factor is our not returning this way again, why not indulge in any species of fraud or deceit or cruelty or exploitation? In fact, only if some people were forced to return to the scene of their exploits might they refrain from selfish and inconsiderate behavior.

The reason for kindness to our fellow-creatures has nothing to do with passing this way once, or twice, or a thousand times; it has to do, rather, with the knowledge that we are commanded to act thus, that it is a very condition of our humanness, that not to do so tears the fabric of creation, violates the natural law, and perverts the proper goals designed for us and our descendants.

What most of us practice in the modern world—if we practice it at all—is the religion of sentimentality, of faith in faith, of good sayings and warm feelings. And what is wrong with this attitude is that it is essentially frivolous and superficial, it does not engage the deepest parts of our personality, and most of all, does not give us the strength to resist the evil in ourselves, only in others.

Atheism has never been a formidable enemy of religion; but idolatry has always been. The chief idolatry of our age is sentimentalism, and its only dogma is "No dogmas—just warm feelings."

Potomac Fever — by Fletcher Knebel

Astronaut Gordon Cooper will address Congress. Probable salutation: "Fellow practitioners of fly-by wire. . ."

JFK, in Dixie speeches, pleads for racing tolerance. After all, if men and women can live together without shooting each other, anybody can.

You can cheer all you want over Cooper, Glenn, Schirra and the rest, but the busiest astronaut is that fellow Roger.

E. William Henry, new boss of the Federal Communications Commission, is only 34. Dangerous experiment, entrusting the airwaves to a fellow who can hardly remember the days when a western was a sandwich.

Economic boss Walter Heller says business is gaining confidence. What he means is that businessmen figure Kennedy has so many other problems, he'll let business alone for awhile.

SMOOTH SAILING AHEAD

by Capt. A.B. Fraser-Harris, RCN

Check Your Gear Before Shoving Off

By Capt. A. B. Fraser-Harris should never be without:

1. Life-saving gear.
2. Fire extinguisher.
3. Paddles.
4. Anchor.
5. Bailor.
6. Knife.
7. Lines.

In an auto, if your engine fails, you can pull in to the curb and patiently await the tow truck. But if the same thing happens in a boat, you may be in trouble; boat and gear may be swept away by wind, tide or stream may sweep you into danger.

With an anchor aboard, you will be in better shape and, if you have paddles, you may be able to reach safely.

Don't go off and leave your lines on the jetty (pier). You can never be sure that you will return to the same place. If you do go alongside elsewhere, you'll need your lines to secure.

The need for a fire extinguisher should be obvious. In a car, your gas tank is well separated from the passenger compartment; in a small boat, the gas rides right along with you. The danger of fire, therefore, is greatly increased. If you do catch fire in a boat, you may have no choice but to go overboard before you sail and don't risk the side—and if and when you're back, your boat or your reputation, you'd better have life-saving equipment.

Life-saving equipment is a must, both by law and in a common sense. While on the subject of risking your life, remember that in a small pleasure craft just as in Every sailor should carry a big ship, always carry life preserver and take along a bailing-server for everyone aboard. Automatic bailers are fine. Certain types and makes of life-buoy they only work when the engine is running. What good are they when the engine stops? Canadian Department of Transport. Whatever the size of boat or port. Such equipment carries a purpose of your trip, therefore, label or marker bearing "approval" there are seven items that you'll numbers.

There are four basic types of equipment available: life preservers or jackets, buoyant vests, buoyant cushions, and ring buoys. In a small boat, it's best to carry buoyant cushions and/or buoyant vests. The cushions serve a double purpose, and the buoyant vests can comfortably be slipped on over any other gear if the going gets rough and you are a non-swimmer.

A good seaman never plays "chicken," but always tries to anticipate trouble. Incidentally, a lot of people who do know how to swim will panic when they find themselves alone in the water off-shore; remember this if you're taking people out skiing. Apart from the all-important safety factor, a life preserver or vest gives them added confidence. In certain states, wearing such equipment is mandatory.

Another point to remember: don't stow life-saving gear where it cannot be reached if the boat capsizes.

The Coast Guard or water police can board you at any time to inspect your boat. They will be doing this for your own safety and assistance, but they must also enforce the regulations and, if they don't find the required equipment, you're in trouble. I find it amazing that people who pay hundreds of dollars in life insurance, and who would never drive a car without good brakes, will go out in a small boat without a life preserver when they can't swim.

Go out and have fun, but come back alive—and, incidentally, avoid the risk of having to pay a fine.

3 Senators Would Inquire In Need for State Agency

MADISON (AP)—The Legislature detailed incidents he said indicate the Joint Finance Committee that a crime syndicate is active has recommended passage of a bill in Wisconsin. He quoted Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy as saying investigation unit.

The bill endorsed by a unanimous vote Tuesday would create a special committee of three senators to investigate the need to establish a state crime investigation agency. ## Cooper Hailed During Parade In New York

Astronaut Given Great Applause in Congress Tuesday

NEW YORK (AP)—Astronaut Gordon Cooper got New York City's biggest welcome today — a ticker tape parade up lower Broadway.

The slim, quiet-spoken spaceman comes fresh from the cheers of thousands in Washington, the praise of President Kennedy and the thunderous applause of a joint meeting of Congress.

Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson rode next to Cooper in the traditional parade to City Hall for medal-pinning ceremonies.

The forecast was for fair skies, but no ill wind would have cooled the enthusiasm of New Yorkers eager for a chance to cheer their hero.

2,000 at Luncheon

About 2,000 guests have been invited by the city to a luncheon, honoring the 36-year-old Air Force major, who blasted off to fame last week with his 22-orbit space flight.

Cooper's first stop was at the White House, where Kennedy pinned on his lapel the Distinguished Service Medal of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Then, joined by Vice President Johnson and Sen. Clinton Anderson, D-N.M., chairman of the Senate House Space Committee, Cooper rode in the White House parade limousine at the head of a motorcade up Pennsylvania Avenue to the Capitol.

It was one, long, tremendous ovation. Police estimated the crowd at 250,000 despite early morning rain that let up just in time.

No Plans for New Mercury Flights

WASHINGTON (AP)—US space officials have locked the door against any more Project Mercury space flights—but have left the key handy just in case.

"Only a fool never changes his mind," said Abraham Hyatt, director of planning and program evaluation for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. But, he added, "at this moment, plans are to end the Mercury program as of now."

He and NASA Chief James E. Webb spoke Tuesday at a meeting of Rocket Club. Webb said officials plan to take "a good hard look" at the data from Gordon Cooper's 22-orbit flight before the final decision is made.

"Unless we find a gap in the information—this will be the last shot," he said.

The next space project is Gemini—two-man flights.

66.7 Per Cent Approval Required but Only 47.8 Per Cent Backed Proposal

BY OVID A. MARTIN

WASHINGTON (AP)—Wheat growers have voted strongly against stricter controls on their crops, capping the biggest campaign ever waged in the American farmlands with a stinging defeat for the Kennedy administration and its farm policies.

The administration had thrown its prestige and strength behind its program in a battle against farm groups demanding less rather than more government in agriculture.

Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman had predicted that defeat of the plan would result in "chaotic" wheat market conditions.

The extent of the defeat in Tuesday's referendum was measured by the fact that the administration proposal failed to muster a simple majority of the votes. Approval by at least 66.7 per cent of those voting was required for adoption.

First Rejection

Complete returns gave 547,151 for the plan and 506,943 against. The vote in favor was 47.8 per cent of the total—far short of that required. This was the first time in 13 referenda that a wheat control program had been rejected.

Tuesday's referendum means an alternative program of low price supports for those who voluntarily cut production—but none for those who reject any acreage controls — will govern the 1964 wheat crop.

Judgment Accepted
Administration spokesmen, from Kennedy on down, made it clear they plan to hold the farmers to their choice.

Kennedy said the administration accepts the judgment of the wheat farmers, who "voted for

State's Growers in Favor of Program

MADISON (AP)—Wisconsin's wheat farmers supported the Kennedy administration's new wheat control program Tuesday, casting 3,484 votes for and 2,766 against in a nationwide referendum.

The "yes" vote represented 55.7 per cent of the turnout of 6,522, which included 272 challenged votes.

Leland Mulder, chairman of the Wisconsin Agricultural Stabilization Committee, said the total vote represented a fine turnout.

the right to produce whatever they desire in 1964, for whatever the market will pay, rather than for higher prices and limited production."

Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman, who before the vote said defeat of the administration plan would be "chaotic," said flatly today the alternative provided by the referendum "will be in effect for the 1964 wheat crop."

"The point of view which prevailed in the referendum is entitled to a full and fair trial," he said.

And Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, said he would do all in his power to prevent any further wheat legislation this session.

A record outpouring of votes—particularly in the non-commercial wheat areas east of the Mississippi—overwhelmed the favorable votes cast in a small portion of the commercial wheat states of the Great Plains and Pacific Northwest.

Vote Less Than Expected

In only one region—the southeast—did the administration plan get a heavy majority. This region produces relatively little wheat but has become accustomed to rigid controls on its cotton, tobacco and peanut crops.

The national vote turnout among

Negro Students Placed in Custody Of College Chief

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—Racial unrest showed no sign of subsiding here today as more than 900 Negro students were released from jail to the custody of North Carolina Agricultural and Technical College.

But some progress was reported in racial disputes elsewhere in the state.

A court order issued at the suggestion of Gov. Terry Sanford virtually cleared three temporary jails set up in Greensboro to house more than 1,200 persons held on various charges resulting from racial demonstrations.

Trials Start Thursday

More than 1,500 persons have been arrested during the last week.

The college students were placed in custody of Dr. L. C. Dowdy, acting president of the state-supported college. They were ordered to appear in court for trials beginning Thursday.

Included among those released were 162 persons—including several juveniles—arrested during demonstrations Tuesday night.

Approximately 300 other demonstrators, mostly Bennett College students, remained in jail.

Kennedy to Visit New York City

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy's trip to New York Thursday will be a mixture of presidential private and political business.

Pierre Salinger, White House press secretary, said Kennedy is expected to land at Idlewild at 11:25 a.m. and will motor to Battery Park to dedicate a memorial in honor of servicemen who lost their lives in the Atlantic in World War II.

At 8:30 p.m., the President is scheduled to attend a political fund-raising banquet.

Salinger said it was also possible the President will have several private business appointments before flying back to Washington late Friday.

A car-train crash and another involving an auto and a truck raised the Wisconsin highway toll for the year to 258 Tuesday compared with 270 on this date a year ago. Each mishap claimed one life.

Edward A. Ambrose, 74, of rural Jefferson was killed Tuesday evening in the collision of his car and eastbound No. 10 Western Railway freight train at a crossing a mile and a half south of Jefferson.

James Buday, 17, of Milwaukee was killed Tuesday night in the collision of his car and a truck at the intersection of Highway 41 and the Waukesha-Washington county line road on the outskirts of Menomonee Falls.

Wisconsin Synod of Lutherans Against Parochial Schools Aid

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The Wisconsin Lutheran Synod's Council of presidents said in a statement Tuesday that church leaders "neither want nor seek the assistance of the state" in their educational program.

The 350,000 member synod operates 224 parochial grade schools and eight high schools in 13 states.

The council added in a statement that if the state gave assistance to parochial schools, it would "be shirking its duty if it does not determine and supervise the manner in which its monies are used."

"Thus, the council added, "invites the intrusion of the state into an area not assigned to it by God."

State Patrol Stops 566 Cars

Tickets Handed Motorists Driving Defective Autos

NEW LONDON — State Traffic Patrol officers were aided Tuesday by three members of the New London City police force and two members of the Waupaca County Traffic Patrol in checking 566 cars.

The safety check was held north of the city on U.S. 45.

Of the 566 cars checked, 22 were found to have seat belts. But, in only 12 of the cars were the belts being used. Officers issued 205 equipment violation notices to drivers stating repairs must be made immediately and a copy of the violation notice sent to the district headquarters at Schofield within five days.

Officers also explained the five-day notices need not be signed by a law enforcement agency as in the past, but the driver or owner of the car must certify by signature and date the time the repairs were made before sending in the notice to Schofield.

Most of the equipment violations involved lights. There were 21 cars with faulty headlights, 21 for tail lights, 33 for license plate lights, 35 for stop lights, 31 for directional lights and 10 for clearance lights.

Five drivers received citations to appear in court. Other notices issued were eight, no driver's license or chauffeurs license, 11 improper license plates, six, no windshield wipers, eight, no horn, two defective foot brake, 13 defective hand brake, four muffler violations, and two speedometer violations.

The inspections started at 8:30 a.m. and concluded at 4 p.m. They were interrupted during the day by showers.

Members of the city police force, that aided the five state men were, patrolman, David Blissett, Richard Fritz and Sgt. Willard Groat. Waupaca County patrolmen assisting in the inspections were Sgt. Lyle McCully and George Meating.

Today the crew moved to Clintonville where inspections will be conducted. Thursday they will be in Shawano.

Thailand Youth Chilton's First AFS Student

Boy to Arrive in August, Live With Leo Heine Family

CHILTON — A diminutive boy from Thailand will be Chilton's first foreign exchange student.

The American Field Service announced through its Chilton chapter that Cherdasak Choomnoon, 17, will come to the city in late August to live with the Leo Heine family, 414 Reed St., while he attends Chilton High School. Mrs. William Engler Jr., president of the Chilton AFS Chapter, made the announcement.

The Thailand boy, who according to his application form will use the name "Cherd" during his stay in the United States, is now attending a teacher training college at Khorat. His occupational ambition is to follow in the footsteps of his father and become a teacher. His father is a professor at a Thailand university.

Buddhist Boy

His vital statistics show the boy to be five feet, one inch tall and 110 pounds. He plays baseball, basketball and Thailand football (soccer). Cherd is a Buddhist and has four brothers and two sisters.

His "host parents" are elated at having been selected to provide the boy's new home. The Heines have two sons, John, 8, and Lee, 14. Heine is employed by the General Telephone Co.

Serving as host to an exchange student is the first important step for a community entered in the Foreign Exchange Student program. Once the local chapter has been host to a foreign student for a full school term, it becomes eligible to send a Chilton youth abroad.

The local AFS chapter is still working on its financial obligations for the Thailand youth's arrival. The chapter must provide $800 for travel expenses. It has raised about $500 and still needs $300 to meet the requirement. Of the money raised thus far, $200 has been pledged by the Chilton High School Student Chapter. $100 has been donated by the Chilton Kiwanis Club and other organizations and individuals have made lesser contributions.

The group's next fund raising project is a community auction sale. The date has not been set.

Water Drainage Of Waupaca Lake Remains Problem

Property Owners Will Meet With Council for Suggestions

WAUPACA — The problem of getting water to drain out of the ravine from Union Street to Shadow Lake when the land is about the same level as the water level of the lake became a discussion topic for the city council Tuesday night.

Although a number of suggestions were presented, it was decided a meeting of property owners with the council may be needed before the problems are resolved.

Last year, the city dredged out the creek through the ravine to the lake even through the ditch is on private property. The city hired county equipment for the project, which was highlighted by the county digging machine sinking down in the muck of the swamp.

Storm Sewer

The work, however, was voided by the muck which filled the ditch to almost the same level as it was before the dredging project.

The city's interest in the project is a storm sewer which empties into the ravine. The water from this sewer is supposed to run to the lake, but because the level of the lake is so high, the water remains at a constant level in the creek and there is no drainage.

Complicating the problem is the fact there are a number of springs helping to keep the area flooded.

Property owners complain of mosquitoes hatching in the water puddles.

Fill Areas

Hiram Krebs, city engineer, advised the council the city has the right to dump storm sewer waters into existing creeks even if they flow across private lands.

One suggestion was to have the property owners fill the low areas, but this admittedly would not solve the problem of the water from the springs.

The suggestion of running the storm sewer all the way to Shadow Lake, a distance of about 2,000 feet, was determined as not too sound because it would cause a back pressure which would keep additional water on the streets.

The problem was postponed, with the understanding the councilmen will listen to suggestions from the property owners. There

Chilton Council Nears Decision on Sewage Treatment Plant Issue

Aldermen Await Check Before Okaying New Outlet Construction

CHILTON — The city council Tuesday night moved to the brink of a decision on the prolonged sewage treatment plant problem, but then held back to await a state inspection report on the existing plant's efficiency before deciding the fate of a plan to build a new plant.

Lions club Monday night voted a $500 donation to the Riverside Memorial Community hospital expansion drive.

Despite the failure to take decisive action, the lengthy discussion Tuesday apparently crystallized the issue. An unfavorable report by the State Board of Health on its May 14 inspection of the camp is expanding and suggested members forward the complete plant rejuvenation. Estimates of visually handicapped children for attendance at the camp Meeting with the council were all members of the Utilities Commission, two representatives of the McMahon Engineering Co., state a chance to attend the Menasha, including its president, M. O. Clinton, and utilities superintendent Del Roll.

Total Project

The issue confronting the council entails either proceeding with a complete rejuvenation project or keeping the existing plant in operation through what was described as "piecemeal maintenance and rejuvenation."

The Utilities Commission recommends the total project. The engineer recommends at least getting bids on the work to determine if the project is economically feasible. Clinton leads toward the total project but suggests that all bids could be rejected if costs run too high and the continuing maintenance plan then adopted. He stated this stand in his report.

Unexpected availability to the city of a $67,930 federal grant in aid for the total rejuvenation project has brought the issue to a head. The grant would reduce the city's share of the project to an estimated $180,000.

At the last council meeting, Clinton was instructed to inspect the existing plant and report back on what repairs and replacements he would recommend as necessary immediately. His report listed an $100,000 in repairs this year and $23,334 next year. This would be done without federal money. Clinton also pointed out that continued maintenance would be necessary and stated that the extensive piecemeal remodeling he suggested would not bring the plant up to the efficiency of a new unit, nor would it have the capacity of a new plant.

Plant Efficiency

The report also showed plant efficiency at 67 and 57 per cent on two test factors. The State Committee on Water Pollution used in demand efficiency of over 90 per cent on both factors, according to the report.

However the council was not ready to accept the test evaluation listed in the report. Basis for the reluctance comes from a report within the past year stating that the plant was then operating at over 90 per cent efficiency.

The report on last week's test by the State Board of Health could be a decisive factor on the issue.

Two motions were before the council when the delay was decided. One, sponsored by Ald. Ray Jensen, asked for a "yes" or "no" secret ballot vote for or against the total project. Ald. William moved to proceed with the "piecemeal maintenance" but Jensen's motion had precedence.

Referendum to Bond for $1.9 Million Will be Put Before Electors June 25

NEW LONDON — Voters of the New London School district will go to the polls June 25 to decide on a $1.9 million bond issue for construction of a new high school.

At a special board of education meeting Tuesday night, members not only set the date of the referendum but also voted to construct a one-story high school if the referendum is passed.

The board was presented with two proposals for the type of structure. One was a two-story building consisting of 136,168 square feet and a one-story structure of 131,974 square feet.

The architects designing the school explained rough, preliminary floor plans of both the one- and two-story buildings.

In the original proposal for a school, which would have cost $2.7 million and was defeated in an April 2 referendum, the academic portion of the building contained a court and was two stories high. It contained 58 teaching stations and 198,200 square feet.

No Court

The new one-story sketch, favored by the board, does not have a court. The originally proposed field house was reduced to a regular sized gymnasium. The field house design contained 45,900 square feet of space. It was shaved to 31,000 square feet. One teaching station was cut off. The one-story design has 49 teaching stations.

In another effort to cut costs, classroom sizes were reduced from 28 by 30 feet to 26 by 31 feet. Both the architects and Supt. of Schools Lloyd Qualley said the smaller class rooms would be adequate for the recommended 25 students per classroom.

The architects explained they had tried to maintain the basic program in each of the designs, but had eliminated the swimming pool, center courts and larger gym. They did, however, maintain the size of the shop areas and width of corridors.

The main academic wing would be approximately 400 feet long, facing Pine Street, the same street the first building was intended to face. It would be four classrooms wide with academic rooms on the outside walls. The interior rooms would be science labs and home economics rooms.

To the north of the main wing would be the study hall, locker rooms, music rooms, shops and gymnasium. Facilities used for community affairs as well as basketball games and other sports events would be grouped so they could be closed off from the academic portion of the school.

Design for Expansion

Both the one-story and the two-story plan were designed for future expansion.

During a lengthy discussion the audience of about 25 citizens was asked to express its choice of school.

It was explained by the architect the one-story structure could be built for less money than the two-story design.

Also brought out in the discussion was that the one-story building contained more square feet of academic area. This was done by eliminating stairways. Originally the school called for 23 academic teaching stations. With the new one-story design, there are 21 academic stations. With the two-story design there are 20 teaching stations.

A question of maintenance of a one-story versus two-story was raised. The architects said there will be little or no difference in maintenance costs. Another question of heat losses was also brought up. Architects said it would be the same in both type buildings.

Additions Discussed

Supt. Qualley said he favored the one-story over the two-story plan.

Tom Schoen Paces 9-3 Win In Tournament

CHILTON — Tom Schoen pounded a 3-run homer and scattered nine hits while leading the Stockbridge High School Indians to a 9-3 win over the Brillion Lions in a WIAA District tournament game here Tuesday afternoon.

The win kept the Indians' slate unblemished and earned them the right to meet Hilbert for the tournament title at 4 p.m. Thursday.

Stockbridge jumped off to a 3-0 lead in the top of the first. Marty Seckel's single after two errors and a walk was the key blow. The Lions got one back in their half of the frame on singles by Greg Hempel and Don Gottler.

Schoen helped his own cause in the second. The sophomore hurler smashed the circuit clout to left center with two teammates aboard via a walk and hit batsmen.

Wes Saenger connected for a timely 2-run single in the fifth to cup the Lion scoring. Stockbridge added three insurance runs in the sixth. Singles by Gary Mayer and Neil Wood figured in the rally.

Baseball Complications

Abraham Park Use Problem Discussed

NEW LONDON — How to set the children to play in the park all ages can benefit? This was asked if the council could the problem turned over to the plant some grass or oats on the park board at Tuesday night's city empty park so wind and water erosion would be stopped. One citizen also asked if the city wouldn't put some playground equipment in the park.

No Plans

The park was donated to the city by Martin Abraham about a year ago. The city had made no plans to develop it as a playground this year, it was explained. There was no money put in the budget for this project. During the winter months the street department has hauled fill into the park and graded it down. No plans had been made to seed it this year.

Al Nietz, representing the Boys League told the council that they had two plans, both leaving ample space for playground equipment in the park. He said the league would play games three nights a week for about one hour a night. During this time, he said, it would be dangerous for little children. However, he said the diamonds would be blocked off during the day so that the older children could not play ball.

The park board will figure out a layout for the park and Mayor Wilmer Schlatter told the audience that the council members would work on the problem.

The council also voted to transfer $500 from the contingent fund to donate to the Boys League.

Neenah Falls to Berlin, 4-0, On 1-Hitter by Dean Klauer

OSHKOSH — Dean Klauer spun two out but was thrown out at a 1-hitter to lead Berlin to a 4-0 victory over Neenah in a WIAA district baseball game Tuesday.

Neenah won the game in the fourth inning, when Klauer singled to left field and Joe Muench popped to the second baseman. Rain interrupted the contest four times before the game was called in the bottom of the sixth with Goetz on first base by virtue of a walk and nobody out.

Berlin had not scored in its half of the inning. The lights had been turned on at the start of the fifth inning.

The two teams were rained out Monday in the third inning of play with Neenah holding a 3-0 lead.

Berlin will now meet the winner of today's Oshkosh - Omro game for the district title Friday afternoon.

K of C Building New Kitchen in Kimberly Hall

KIMBERLY — The Father Vanden Borne Council of the Knights of Columbus has started building kitchen facilities for the meeting room at the rear of the village hall.

Volunteers are knocking out a rear wall in the hall and enclosing a portion of a storage garage to provide a 10-foot kitchen area. The improvement will make it possible for clubs and organizations using the meeting rooms to prepare light lunches and snacks while the meeting is in progress.

Extensive mason work was required, along with wiring and carpenter work. The Knights of Columbus are assuming the cost of the improvement although kitchen facilities will be used by many clubs and organizations.

also were brought into the discussion. Board member-elect Gordon Reidenbach said before voters will okay the construction of a new school, they will want concrete proof that additions will not be practical. It was suggested by other board members that informational meetings be conducted to explain why the board has decided to favor new construction over additions.

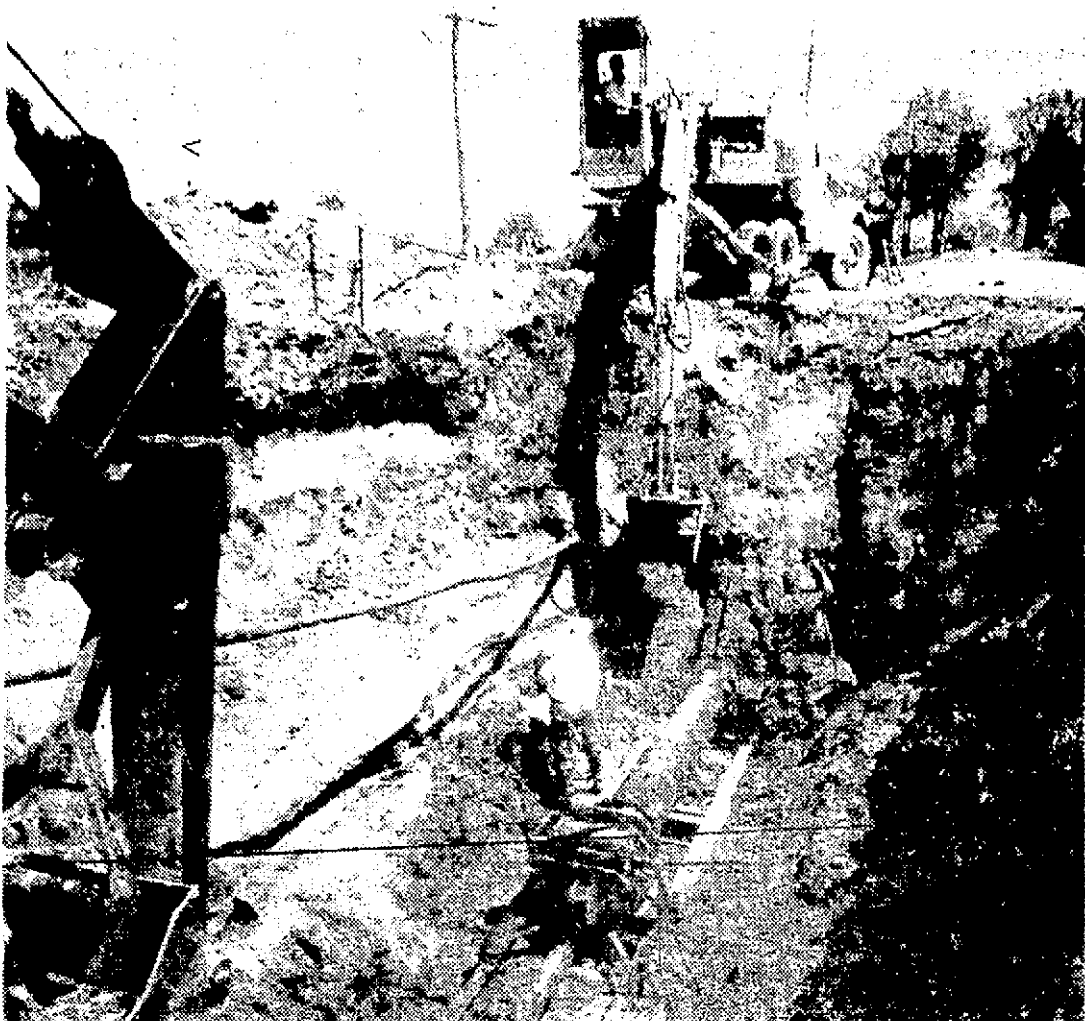

One of the reasons given by Qualley was elementary school housing is becoming critical. The present high school is needed to house the junior high, thereby making more room available in the elementary schools. Another reason was additions to present schools will solve only the housing problem for a few years. Then another crowded condition will exist.

Cost Estimates

Before voting to accept the one-story design, cost estimates of both structures were figured by board member Dean Dronwall. For the two-story building, figuring $13 a square foot it would amount to $1,780,000. Adding $107,000 architect fees, $30,000 site development and a $20,000 contingent fund, the total came to $1,937,000.

The one-story building at the same $13 per square foot came to $1,720,000. With $103,000 architect fees plus the same site development cost and contingent fund, the total was $1,873,000.

Because minor changes may still be made in the arrangement of the building and cost estimates may vary, the bond issue referendum was set at $1.9 million.

Modern Kids More Sophisticated Than Charlie Was as a Youngster

BY CHARLES HOUSE
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

(This is another in a series on children's games and recreation in past years.)

It seems to me that today's young 'uns are somewhat superior and certainly more sophisticated than I was in the mauve decades. And though I do not decry the young people of today, I feel that they miss a little of the kind of fun which came to all kids a few generations ago.

For many years I have not seen a boy roll a hoop down a street, and that was simple, pure fun. Oldsters will recall that we nailed a little crossbar at the bottom of a stick or even a lath. It helped if the crossbar were somewhat curved to give the boy better control of his hoop.

The stick itself was three or four feet long. Most of us could roll our hoop right down the handle and put it into motion. We could run swiftly, guiding the wheel ahead of us, and we could make serpentine curves with them. Every kid had a hoop and a hoopstick.

If I remember correctly, the hoops generally were from pickle barrels and were made of wood. I recall also that the crossbar was also part of such a pickle barrel.

hoop and cut down. The hoop it from my youth is still played self would be any kind of a wheel and is still fun, but it has been from a baby buggy, from a come so closely associated with coaster wagon or from almost football that it does not closely anything else.

Hoops Were Fun

Some the kids simply drove a long spike through the bottom of the long stick and used the spike as a guide instead of the crossbar. Anyhow, hoops were fun. Every kid made a scooter for himself sooner or later. Fathers will remember that they made a lot of noise on the concrete sidewalks, but oh the joy in scooting downhill!

Everyone had his own method of manufacture. In my neighborhood, most of the kids cut a 2x4 to the proper length — perhaps about five feet. We would take apart an old roller skate and nail one pair of skate wheels on the front of the scooter and one pair on the back. We then nailed a wooden apple box onto the front of the 2x4 and put handles on the top of the box. Then we were in business.

Sometimes the kids would not use an apple box and simply nail two 2x4's together at right angles and then nail handles on the top. They would put braces on the sides to hold the 2x4's more firmly together and it seems to me that we often carried our treasures in the little pocket that was created by the double braces. One of the games remembered

Pom Pom Pullaway

This was pom-pom pullaway. In some parts of the country it was called "Here come 10,000 men to work." But the game was played the same way. It consisted of two teams. For convenience here, let us call them Reds and Whites. There were two goals, one on each end of a field. The Reds would line up horizontally on one; the Whites on the other. Then, the Reds for example, would call out: "Pom Pom Pullaway; if you don't come we'll pull you away!"

The White team would advance slowly to about midfield, and they would chant "Here we come!" The Reds would answer by saying, "Where from?"

The Whites: "From New York." The Reds: "What's your trade?" The Whites: "Lemonade." The Reds: "What are the initials and how do you do it." At this point, the Whites would select out some occupation selected in conference before the start of the game. Suppose it had chosen the occupation of coal miner. The Whites would pretend to use picks and shovels and whatever else the kids happened to know about that occupation.

The Reds tried to guess the occupation both from the acting and from the initials. If they called out their guess and it was incorrect, the Whites would say nothing but continue to act out the charade.

At last someone would guess it correctly. When he called it out, the Whites would turn and run wildly for their own goal. If any of the team was tagged before reaching his goal, he would automatically have to become a member of the other "Red" team. The object was to diminish the numbers of the opponents and Raised from instructor to assistant professor are Dan P. Cole, who thus win the game when the last of the team was tagged before of the team, usually the swiftest, would be captured. But after the Whites acted out the charade, the Reds would take a turn and so on. Such a game could last for hours. And it was fun!

Cuba Claims Rebel Band Wiped Out

HAVANA (AP) — The government said Tuesday it had wiped out a rebel band in unruly Matanzas province. It was the third such claim in less than a week.

The government said security police discovered the band on a farm near Colon, 116 miles west of Havana.

It said they had murdered two policemen, burned sugar plantations and committed other acts of sabotage.

The Cubans claimed they were "criminals, directed by the central intelligence agency."

Tense Moments Par for U. S. Space Flights

Cooper Carries on
As Light Flashes
Before His Re-Entry

BY HUGH A. MULLIGAN
CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)
—Astronaut Gordon Cooper's capsule gave the country some anxious moments towards the end of his spectacular flight but this was only carrying on what apparently has become an American space tradition.

Making cliff hangers out of the final stages of a space flight has just about become par for the celestial course.

Cooper's troubles with the little light that came on when it should not—and that eventually forced him to go to manual controls on re-entry into the earth's atmosphere—echoed the troubles experienced by several other astronauts.

Virgil I. Grissom, for instance, nearly drowned on a suborbital flight two years ago. After his spaceship, the Liberty Bell 7, had dunked down safely in the Atlantic Ocean, the hatch cover blew unexpectedly and inexplicably.

Forced to flee out the neck of the capsule, Grissom found himself sinking in deep water with a pocketful of weighted souvenirs—two rolls of fifty dimes which he had taken along at the request of some school children. The astronaut finally was picked up by a helicopter but his capsule sank to the ocean floor. It has never been retrieved.

Similarly, John H. Glenn Jr. and millions of television viewers had some trying moments on his historic flight in February, 1962 when a faulty switch told a cosmic fib. It indicated—erroneously—that the heat shield on the capsule might come loose.

Glenn Flight
Glenn had to go to manual controls on re-entry and was forced to keep his retro pack in place instead of jettisoning it to prevent the heat shield from falling off. The shield protects a space craft from the tremendous temperatures that build up as it re-enters the earth's atmosphere.

In perhaps the most dramatic final act of all just a year ago, Malcolm Scott Carpenter overshot the landing area by more than 250 miles. For 30 minutes he bobbed around on a raft out of contact with the recovery fleet and the millions praying for his safety.

Carpenter's troubles, like Cooper's, were caused by a failure in the automatic control system. To make matters worse, he switched to fly by wire a sort of semi-automatic fuel system, as he prepared to fire his reverse rockets, but forgot to turn off the manual system. The result was that he was dangerously low on fuel at re-entry.

The failure of the automatic controls prevented him from bringing his capsule into the proper attitude. So he was not on a straight path when the rockets fired. This, plus the fact that the rockets did not deliver full thrust, caused the dramatic overshoot.

Presbyterian Assembly Now Near Its Close

Group Seeks Greater Peace-Making Efforts; Applauds Catholic-Protestant Cordiality

BY GEORGE W. CORNELL
DES MOINES Iowa (AP)—The United Presbyterian General Assembly neared its close today with a call for greater peace-making efforts among nations among races and among the separate bodies of Christianity.
It applauded the new "cordiality in associations" between Protestants and Roman Catholics.
It appealed to the U.S. government to work with "patience and persistence" to obtain a workable agreement with Russia for controlled disarmament.
Delegates also approved a church constitution revision requiring local congregations to make "certain that membership is not refused because of color, origin or worldly condition."

This action, subject to ratification by local Presbyteries, was described as putting teeth in the 3 1/2 - million - member denomination's declared objective of a "non-segregated church in a non-segregated society."
The legislative assembly, churning through an array of other matters in a late session last night also
1. Petitioned President Kennedy to call a White House conference on civil rights as soon as feasible to hasten the day when "color or national origin" will be irrelevant to rights of citizenship.
2. Urged Congressional legislation to "safeguard the rights and interests" of migrant farm laborers appealed for similar state and community action and advocated a "phasing out" of farm-labor importation.
3. Called for renewed attempts to meet the "unsolved problem" of adequate medical care to the aged.
4. Endorsed the proposed establishment of a "National Service Corps" to deal with continuing "massive human needs" in this country, and said young Presbyterians might express their Christianity by serving in it.
5. Asked removal of "restrictive and discriminatory" immigration laws regarding Asians, Africans and eastern and southern Europeans, and an increase in admissions to 250,000 annually from the present 150,000.
6. Urged the U.S. government to be prepared to provide, on request, medical and educational aid for "adequate programs of family planning" in underdeveloped countries with soaring populations.
7. Suggested that church boards, agencies and local units examine their contracts for goods and services to make sure funds are not used to support racially discriminatory or segregated institutions.
8. Called for close church attention to urban renewal projects and planning, adding that Protestants have in the past failed to appreciate the city as a part of God's world.

Block Negroes' School Bid

Wallace Warned
His Action May Lead to Violence

BIRMINGHAM Ala (AP) — Gov. George C. Wallace, thrusting state sovereignty into the path of federal authority, has set out to block court-ordered desegregation of the University of Alabama.
The youthful Alabama governor laid his constitutional authority on the line Tuesday after the university board of trustees had agreed to admit two Negroes and U.S. Dist. Judge H. Hobart Grooms refused to delay the June 10 enrollment.
Thus Wallace embarked upon the same course followed last fall by Gov. Ross Barnett of Mississippi who barred Negro James H. Meredith from the University of Mississippi. Meredith later enrolled behind federal forces.
Atty. Gen. Richmond Flowers, a political foe of Wallace, warned defiance of federal court orders may lead to violence. He said those who defy such orders may be blamed if federal troops are used in Alabama as they were in Mississippi.

MADISON (AP) — A bill that Wood said "All I know is that proposes to divert $800,000 from Mr. Zuckerman initiated the state highway funds to develop bill." He referred to Stanley facilities for pleasure boats got Zuckerman, Reynolds' executive a cool reception Tuesday from secretary the Senate Labor Taxation, insurance and Banking Committee, sending the Wisconsin Petroleum The money represents the Council also emphasized the amount of gasoline tax estimated to be paid by motor boat owners. Under terms of the bill it would be used to construct boat facilities on the Great Lakes and the Mississippi and St. Croix Rivers, assist localities in water improvement projects and provide state aid for lake access.
Sen. Robert Knowles, R-New Richmond, thought he detected a conflict in the bill and Gov. John W. Reynolds morning address to the Legislature, criticizing the lump condition of highway finances.
Not Positive
Knowles asked Donald Wood representing the resource development department, sponsor of the measure, whether it had the Reynolds' approval.

Too Many Goodies

Writer Has Trouble Buying Just Bread

BY JOY STILLEY

NEW YORK (AP)—Going into the supermarket for just a loaf of bread is like eating only one salted peanut—it simply can't be done.

There may be some purposeful individuals who can march straight to the bread counter, looking neither to the right nor left, but I am not one of them.

I have upon occasion managed to get to the bakery department without acquiring anything else along the route. But even when I reach that goal temptation assails me from every side.

If by putting my mental blinders on I can manage to separate a loaf of bread from its cupcake, pie, and other mouth-watering neighbors, I still am not safe.

It's an old grocery-store formula that the shortest distance between the bread department and the checkout counter is through a maze of shelves packed with resolution-shattering goodies.

Big Signs

To compound the brain-washing, big bold signs announce that special values are to be had "today only." Reason tells me that those placards have been up for a week and are likely to remain for another. But there's always the chance I might never have another chance.

Not one to pass up a sale, I pick up two cans of okra from a display labeled in commanding "Save!" In the excitement of getting such a good buy, I forget that at home in the cabinet rest two identical cans of okra from the last sale. My family doesn't like okra but I like bargains.

In my slow progress toward the checkout booth I manage to pick up jelly, which looks as though it would taste good on the bread I originally came in for, and at least four or five other items I just can't resist.

My bread-buying technique is amateurish, though, compared with that of my husband.

Send him to the store for the staff of life and he comes back with two bags full of the most exotic food this side of paradise.

He confines his shopping mainly to the gourmet department, a high-priced area I always pass with averted eyes and tightly closed pocketbook.

Fortunately, my husband does not go in for such specialties as fried ants and chocolate-covered grasshoppers. But he does lay in a supply of such glamorous snacks as smoked turkey and ham cooked in wine sauce. I have to admit that they would make lovely sandwiches.

There's only one drawback to that, however. He always forgets the bread he went to buy.

Reds Again Active In Latin Nation

GUATEMALA (AP)—Authorities said Tuesday a new wave of terrorist activity attributed to pro-Communist groups has broken out.

Four bombs exploded in various sectors of the city over the weekend. One explosion took place at a building housing the U.S. military mission. No one was injured and damage was slight.

Police said one bomb was set off at the home of Col. Hector Medina, who represents the government on negotiations for foreign aid and trade.

Wheat Farmers Turn Down Stricter Curbs

The farmers were lower than expected, but the total of more than 113 million was more than double the number voting in any previous wheat referendum.

The plan would have required farmers to reduce 1964 crop plantings 10 per cent from this year. It would have supported 80 per cent of the normal production on allotted acres at $2 a bushel and the remainder at $1.30. Farmers would have gotten payments totaling around $300 million for idled wheat land.

The effect of the referendum is to eliminate all wheat acreage and marketing controls and to reduce price supports—now at $2—to about $1.25. But supporters would be limited to growers making the 10 per cent reduction in plantings.

But there was the possibility of the administration plan would Congress would enact a new program more satisfactory to farmers.

Blow to Freeman
The defeat carried many personal and political implications. It gave credence to administration critics that farmers want less federal interference rather than immediate congressional action. Freeman had staked his prestige on the contention that farmers were willing to accept more effective controls to halt overproduction and stabilize prices.

It could mean that President Kennedy will change his farm policies and move now in the direction of reducing government's role in agriculture. Opponents had campaigned on the contention that approval of the wheat plan would open the door to quotas on livestock, milk, poultry and crops not now subject to them.

Disappointing to Many Leaders of the American Farm Bureau Federation received the results with jubilation. This organization is particularly powerful among the larger commercial farmers as contrasted with the smaller low-income producers. It was highly successful in piling up a heavy "no" vote in the corn-livestock states of the Midwest and Northeast.

By the same token, the results were a keen disappointment to leaders of such rival farm organizations as the National Grange, the National Farmers Union, the National Farm Organization and the National Wheat Growers Association.

The position of Charles B. Shuman as president of the Farm Bureau was strengthened.

Now that the referendum is over, interest will turn to Congress and the big question: Will it or will it not pass a new wheat program?

Before the referendum, the Farm Bureau and some Republican lawmakers had said defeat would be followed by new legislation.

Administration leaders said there was no chance of this.

In a statement saying the referendum showed farmers want a change in direction in government farm policies, Shuman called for immediate congressional action.

Assistant Senate Democratic leader Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, a staunch supporter of the defeated plan, said in a statement that the decision of the wheat farmers should be respected.

He suggested that the administration and representatives of various farm organizations and grain groups should get together as soon as possible to try to find a new solution.

Freeman withheld comment until he had an opportunity to study the returns more fully and to confer with administration leaders.
